IN RICHLAND COUNTY

DEMOCRATIC—Charles Sawyer expected to make sensational address tonight in Columbus. Talked yesterday and last night in Zanesville, Coshocton, Wooster, Millersburg and Newark.

REPUBLICAN—John W. Bricker spoke last night in Cincinnati. Address given in Marion by National G. O. P. Chairman John Hamilton. Robert A. Taft talked in Bowling Green and Fremont. Mrs. Taft talked at Wilmington.

Democratic party leaders today had launched a campaign to win Republican voters to their ranks, depending on expected opposition of Republicans to the presence of avowed Townsend plan supporters on their party ticket for success.

This was learned today simultaneously with an announcement from G. A. Baer, Democratic central committee chairmen, that a concerted precinct drive among Democrats in the county would get underway next week.

The effort to win over Republicans, it was learned, will be concentrated on younger voters, whom Democratc leaders are convinced are unsympathetic to the presence on the Republican ticket of Walter B. Woodward, Bellville, avowed Townsend plan supporter,

With Robert A. Taft, Republican candidate for U. S. senator, scheduled to make his first appearance of the fall campaign in Mansfield tonight, Ralph M. Hardy, county Republican executive chairman, announced today that his party had taken the unusual position of approving Walter B. Woodward, Townsend-backed candidate for congress, but not endorsing the Townsend plan.

"We do not advocate the Townsend plan any more than we approve the Ku Klux Klan, but we are giving Woodward our 100 per cent backing because he is a 100 per cent Republican," Hardy said.

"The Townsend plan is only one of the planks in Woodward's platform, and certainly it is his privilege to support it if he desires, without criticism from the Republican party," Hardy said.

IN OHIO

DEMOCRATIC—Richland county leaders launch campaign to wean young Republican voters to their ranks, and concerted precinct drive among Democrats.

REPUBLICAN—Robert A. Taft, candidate for U. S. senator, addresses rally here tonight. Executive chairman announces party has given Walter B. Woodward, Townsend candidate, 100 per cent backing without endorsing Townsend plan.

In an invasion of his opponent's home territory, John W. Bricker predicted last night in Cincinnati that Works Progress administration rolls probably would reach "an all time high immediately prior to election day."

"High salaried bureaucrats who run the WPA," the Republican candidate for governor told a party rally, "are willing to keep hundreds of thousands of people on the payrolls in the hope that they may thus control their votes."

Bricker also called upon his Democratic opponent, Charles Sawyer, to repudiate Communist party support "as Gov. Herbert H. Lehman has done in New York," and demanded that Sawyer ex-

A much publicized speech that Charles Sawyer is scheduled to make in Columbus tonight will crack the Ohio gubernatorial race wide open, guarded announcements from Democratic headquarters indicated today.

Sawyer, seeking the governorship on the Democratic ticket, has titled his address at Indianola Junior high school "Hear the Truth From Charles Sawyer," and from all reports the truths he intends to tell will be most enlightening.

One source was authority for the prediction that Sawyer would charge that Governor Davey has aligned himself with the Republican forces led by John W. Brick-

NLRB ORDERS BACK WAGES FOR STRIKERS

Final Decision Finds Company Guilty of Sweeping Wagner Act Violations.

CLEARS UP LEGAL TANGLE

Must Reinstate All But 11 Men Who Took Part in 1937's 'Little Steel' Strike.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—In a final ruling, the National Labor Relations Board today held the Republic Steel corporation guilty of sweeping violations of the Wagner act in the 1937 "little steel" strikes and ordered the company to reinstate approximately 5,000 workers who engaged in the strikes in six of the company's Ohio plants.

All But 11 to Be Reinstated.

Broadly, the board decision ordered reinstatement of all striking employes except 11, who were convicted of crimes or pleaded guilty in connection with the strikes.

Today's decision cleared up a legal tangle that developed when the third circuit court of appeals in Philadelphia opposed the labor board's withdrawal of its original ruling against Republic last April, forcing the case into the supreme court. The high court ruled for the board.

Preliminary findings were immediately issued by the board, and after the company replied to these, today's final decision was reached.

Back Pay, Too.

The order today also directed Republic to give back pay to all striking workers since the date of their first application for reemployment. If during that time the strikers have earned money elsewhere, that may be deducted, but if strikers have been on relief, the company must repay to the various relief agencies concerned all money given to the workers, and may then deduct these amounts from back pay due to the workers.

The corporation also was ordered to "completely disestablish as collective bargaining agency"

Board Opens School Bond Bids Friday

Contract for Senior High Addition Will Be Let at Same Time.

The Mansfield board of education will open bids at noon Friday on the $550,000 bond issue for the city's million-dollar school building program and the $25,000 addition to Senior high school, the first unit in the program.

Since indications point to a large number of bidders, particularly on the bonds, Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk of the board, said the bonds may not be sold or the construction contract for the high school addition awarded for a day or two after bids are opened.

The entire $550,000 bond issue will be sold at the same time in denominations of $1,000 to provide funds to supplement a $450,000 PWA grant allotted the Mansfield schools by the federal government.

Doubt Oct. 31 Start.

School officials were doubtful today if work can be started on the high school shop addition by Oct. 31, the deadline set by the state PWA office.

Dr. Bristor said if there should be a delay in selling the bonds or letting the building contract, it would be virtually impossible for a contractor to begin construction on the shop building by the last of the month.

Charles Conklin, Mansfield architect who drew plans for the shop addition, said, however, that he anticipated little difficulty in getting the building under way by Oct. 31.

The contract must be approved by the state office of the PWA after it is awarded by the school board, he said.

Await Architects Report.

Plans for the two $450,000 junior high school buildings which comprise the major part of the building program, have not been complete, but the school board expected to have a report from the architects, Vernon Redding and Associates and Althouse and Jones, within a few days.

Bids for the construction of the junior high buildings, one on the present site of John Simpson Junior high school and the other at Cline avenue and Wood street, will be requested after the program is under way at Senior high school.

The Senior high school addition will be located directly behind the old building and will be used for vocational and shop courses.

The school board had been informed today by the state PWA office that the bonds of contractors on the school building jobs cannot be provided through local representatives and that such provisions must not be included in the building specifications.

On Look-out For Arab Invaders

Jewish girls acting as lookouts

Renewal of Jewish-Arab strife in the Holy Land attracts world attention as Great Britain rushes troops into Palestine to put down a rebel Arab revolt. Even Jewish girls lend a hand against the invader. These three act as lookouts on a bullet-proof watch tower in Jerusalem. They send messages by flag signals.

Girl, 9, Ends 5000-Mile Trip Here

Grandchild of Plymouth Woman Makes Journey From Egypt Alone.

A nine-year-old girl with a fascinating name, who has traveled a third of the way around the world by herself, landed in Mansfield this morning, happy that she was almost at the end of her 5,000-mile journey.

Shelmir Awad, who was born in London and whose home is in Alexandria, Egypt, arrived here by train and was met by relatives who took her to Plymouth where she will live with her American grandmother, Mrs. Lou Becker, and where she will become an American schoolgirl.

Shelmir, who made the ocean trip on the Queen Mary, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Salah Awad of Alexandria. Her father is an Egyptian physician who is in charge of a hospital in Alexandria. Her mother is the former Mary Becker of Plymouth.

The romance of the American girl and the Egyptian medical student began at Oberlin college, of which both are graduates. After their marriage they went to London for some time and it was in the British capital that Shelmir was born.

Later they went to Alexandria, the Mediterranean seaport on the north coast of Egypt and one of the most colorful cities in the world. Two years ago they returned to Plymouth to visit Mrs. Awad's mother.

Shelmir is to have an American education, and as a beginning she will be enrolled in the public schools of Plymouth.

PLANE ABLAZE, PILOT MAKES SAFE LANDING

Motor Falls Out of Flaming Airliner as Seared Flier Wins Death Struggle.

11 PASSENGERS CALM

Rush From Blazing Craft as It Lands in Cotton Field, Quickly Burns Up.

(By International News Service)

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Fourteen persons lived today to tell of a flaming ride through night skies.

Their giant passenger plane was brought down a blazing torch less than ten minutes after it had taken off from Montgomery for Atlanta on its regular run shortly before last midnight.

As they recalled the ride, the passengers, none of whom was seriously injured, told a story of calm courage by the plane's crew that ranks with the tales of heroism on the high seas.

Plane Destroyed.

The plane, a 14-passenger ship valued at $90,000 was completely destroyed by flames within a few minutes after Pilot Dave Hissong, of Atlanta, brought it to an emergency landing in a field a short distance outside the city.

Eleven passenger — including Joseph V. Connolly of New York, general manager of the Hearst newspapers, and E. D. Rivers, jr., of Atlanta, son of Georgia's governor—and a crew of three were aboard the Eastern Airlines plane as it soared into the air from the Montgomery airport.

The huge plane was working perfectly as it took the air, but a few minutes later, according to Pilot Hissong, the ship developed vibrations in the right motor.

The vibrations rapidly grew in intensity, and Pilot Hissong and Co-Pilot Clyde R. Russell decided to return immediately to Montgomery.

Motor Falls Out.

But even as they brought the huge luxury liner around, flames began spurting from the vibrating motor, and within a few minutes the disabled engine either shook itself free of burned loose and went

Famed British Troops Fight Rebelling Arabs

Nine Reported Slain as Coldstream Guards Seek to Oust Natives From Moslem Section of Holy City.

(By Associated Press)

JERUSALEM—Nine Arabs were reported killed and a British soldier and British policeman wounded today as the Coldstream Guards sought to oust rebellious Arabs from the Moslem section of Jerusalem's old city.

A steady fusillade of shots in the old city could be heard by newspaper correspondents on the roof of a hotel outside the walls.

While the crack guardsmen attempted to clean up resistance in Jerusalem, other troops cordoned off half the coastal town of Acre and began a rigorous search in an effort to find members of the band which raided the city's postoffice yesterday.

20,000 Fight 10,000.

The Coldstream Guards marched into the old city shortly after a form of martial law was proclaimed throughout Palestine to aid 20,000 British soldiers in their attempt to crush the uprising of an estimated 10,000 tribesmen.

Jewish and Armenian quarters of the old city were understood to be under complete British control but from the Arab quarter rebel riflemen kept up intermittent sniping attacks.

In his exile home at Karnayel, Syria, Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini, grand mufti of Jerusalem, set forth meanwhile the minimum demands which he said must be met before he would order his Arab followers to stop fighting.

The mufti declared that before peace came to the Holy Land England must: Stop immediately all Jewish immigration into Palestine; grant complete independence and a national government to the Arabs in Palestine, and abandon the idea of a Jewish national home in the Holy Land as embodied in the Balfour declaration of Nov. 2, 1917.

SPARKS OPENS COURT FIGHT

Discharged Highway Engineer Starts Battle Over Ouster.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Harry A. Sparks, deposed highway engineer, began his fight for reinstatement today in common pleas court as Judge Charles A. Leach heard arguments on Sparks' suit to compel John Jaster, jr., state highway director, to put him back on the state pay roll.

Sparks was dismissed shortly after he testified before the special senate investigating committee about costs of applying "hot mix" surfacing to highways.

Jaster maintains Sparks' job was abolished while the deposed engineer claims he was ousted for testifying before the senate committee.

Big Employment Boom Seen as G. M. Rehires 35,000.

NEW YORK—(INS)—A possible nation-wide re-employment movement of major proportions was foreseen today as business and finance expressed approval of General Motors corporation's decision to rehire 35,000 men, which brought substantial advances in the stock market.

The fact that the upturn in the stock exchange was not confined to motors indicated to observers that other great industrial units of the nation may be planning to follow the lead of General Motors soon.

G. M. Chairman Alfred P. Sloan, jr., also announced restoration of last February's pay cut which entailed a 10 per cent slash in salaries under $10,000 annually.

POLICE JAIL 3 HALLOWEENERS

Youths Picked Up After Resident Says Window Was Broken.

A police order issued yesterday to "bring in" Halloweeners who have been destroying property today had landed three youths, the oldest 17, in city jail.

The trio, held for investigation, were arrested by police last night after Chester Swank, 157 Newman street, complained that a window in his home had been broken.

Germany's Second Highest Honor Bestowed on Lindy

Goering Presents Flier With Order of German Eagle In Recognition of Distinguished Air Service.

BERLIN—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, famous American airman, has received the second highest honor which the German government can bestow, it was revealed today.

At a dinner at the home of Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson last night, it was learned, Field Marshal Hermann Goering, in the name of Chancellor Hitler, awarded to Lindberg the order of the German Eagle, with a star. The order was especially created by the Nazi regime for distinguished foreigners.

For Aviation Service.

It was explained that the decoration was bestowed upon Lindbergh in recognition of his services to aviation.

Lindbergh, who recently was the center of an international wrangle over his alleged activities during the European crisis, is the only American who has received this order. Also he is the only American who has received any decoration at Hitler's direct command.

The controversy in which the airman's name was involved arose from charges that he informed the British government at the time of the European war scare that the German air force could defeat the British, French and Russian forces combined.

When the colonel received the order, he flushed, smiled and seemed obviously flustered as if he was unaware, for the moment, of exactly what had happened. Then he shook hands with Goering.

Lindbergh, who arived in Germany last week, inspected a number of aviation factories outside Berlin.

NO EXTRA PAY

Westinghouse Plan Under Par for First Time.

For the first time since the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company put its "profit sharing" plan into effect two years ago, there will be no bonus for employes this month, officials of the company announced today.

George H. Bucher, president of the company, said today in Pittsburgh, that the omission of the adjusted compensation payments this month, did not mean an abandonment of the plan, but was a part of its normal working.

Under the plan, which was put into effect in 1936, workers are given a prorated share of the profits of the company, and this is the first time that no payments have been made, Bucher said.

The plan provides that workers receive a percentage bonus when the company's profits exceed $600,000, a month for a three-month period. During the past three months monthly profits have averaged $570,740, officials said.

REDS INSPIRED STRIKES, CLAIM

Ex-Communist Says Party Sought To Seize Industry.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The sit-down strikes of 1937 were conceived and inspired by Communist party leaders as a "revolutionary tactic to seize all industry," an ex-communist told the Dies un-American activities committee today.

The witness, Clyde Morrow, of Detroit, said that the communists conducted an "experimental" sit-down strike at the Hudson Motor Car company in 1934 through the medium of "stoppage" maneuvers which shut down units or departments of the plant for one hour at a time. The first actual sit-down strike, Morrow testified, was at the Midland Steel company plant two years later.

C. OF C. BOARD OKAYS METERS

Recommendation Urging Early Trial of Plan Submitted to City Officials.

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce today had placed its stamp of approval on the proposed installation of parking meters in downtown Mansfield as the solution to the parking problem.

The recommendation, drafted yesterday by the traffic and safety committees of the chamber and the Retail Merchants association, was presented to city officials today requesting their immediate action.

The recommendation asks the adoption of legislation providing for the trial installation of the meters and recommends that income derived from the machines be used for the employment of additional patrolmen for traffic duty.

It further states that members of the committees have learned that the installation of the meters in over 100 cities has proved "highly satisfactory" in that they have resulted in a "fair" distribution of downtown parking time.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates who has repeatedly called the attention of city officials to the fact that the police department is powerless to enforce the parking regulations with the present undermanned force, said he was "in accord" with the meter plan of parking if given the officers to check the machines

He pointed out that the parking meters would speed up the method of checking for overtime parking and would provide space that is now being occupied by "all-day" parkers.

Hitler Will 'Swallow' Switzerland Next, Ex-Reichstag Member Predicts

Tells Club Here Groundwork Already Laid for Regaining Colonies.

Adolf Hitler has already laid the groundwork for another anschluss, this time in peace-loving Switzerland, and has actually mapped his campaign to regain Alsace-Lorraine and the German colonies taken by Great Britain after the World war, despite his public repudiation of such a plan, Gerhart Seger, former member of the German reichstag, charged in addressing the Mansfield Rotary club yesterday.

Seger, who now lives in New York, has applied for citizenship in this country. He was a wartime German flier and later served in the reichstag before Hitler rose to power. He was imprisoned by Nazis and sent to a concentration camp where he remained for six months before escaping.

Touching on Hitler's plans for the future, which Seger believes is to bring all of the German minorities in the world under the control of his dictatorship, and unite them into one powerful state, he explained how plans for anschluss are started before even the minorities themselves are aware of it

"First, agents go into the minority territory and stir up discontent among the people, and then a Nazi-controlled press takes up the work," Seger says. "In a short time Hitler is telling the world that in all justice to his minority of German-speaking people, he must step in and protect their rights."

Seger is convinced that such

SAFEGUARD ALL REPUBLICS, AIM OF U. S. POLICY

Administration Leader Lists 6 Principal Objectives of Foreign Policy.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A high administration official informed the United Press today that immediate American foreign policy will be directed toward consolidating the efforts of all American republics to safeguard and maintain their democratic institutions and forms of government.

As a result of the Munich agreement, which officials here consider neither a lasting peace nor a settlement of the issues involved, this government plans to concentrate its interest and peace efforts in the western hemisphere.

An administration spokesman asserted that there had been no material change in the foreign policy of the United States, and none was contemplated. A change of emphasis, however, is now in progress for the purpose of focusing attention of Americans on the affairs of this hemisphere.

Lists Six Aims.

The spokesman bolstered his assertions with an outline of the principal points of six foreign policies for the immediate future:

1. This government hopes Europe may settle some of its controversies by pacific methods, and would give its moral encouragement to possible regional conferences among nations concerned. Officials do not believe, however, that there is likely to be a general international conference to attempt such settlements, and this government would not desire to participate in any conference.

2. Chances of achieving international military disarmament at this time or in the near future are considered practically nil.

3. Administration officials consider that President Roosevelt's personal messages to Chancellor Adolf Hitler and other European leaders preceding the Munich conference were not at variance with the United States' historic policy of upholding the sanctity of treaties.

They explained that this government consistently had advocated revision of existing treaties by pacific means whenever revision seemed advisable or was sought by one of the parties thereto. The United States, they said, never has believed that a treaty should stand for all time, regardless of changes and developments in the world. Revision of treaties and peace machinery, officials believe, is as necessary and inevitable as the renovation and remodeling of industrial plants.

4. Continuation of Anglo-American co-operation is economic and trade matters, but no close tie-up of political or economic relations, and no efforts to fuse them. Administration officials anticipate that the Anglo-American reciprocal trade agreement, scheduled for completion at an early date, will stimulate trade between the two countries and that improved trade will reflect itself in other relations.

5. Efforts at the forthcoming Lima conference, and continuing thereafter, to perfect the machinery for amicable solution of all disputes between governments of this hemisphere, and to improve trade, cultural and economic relations among these nations.

6. Continuation of Secretary of State Hull's reciprocal trade program to restore world commerce to a basis of free and unfettered exchange of products among nations. Hull believes that a free-flowing world commerce is the only basis upon which stable economic conditions can be established, and that stabilized peace must have for its foundation a stabilized world economy.

The spokesman said that the most immediate objective of this program is consolidation of the interests of the American republics, and completion of machinery for pacific settlement of all disputes. Added assurance must be given that practices and policies of government and international relations in this hemisphere will continue to be based upon orderly processes of law and equity.

This can be achieved, it was stated, by conviction among people of the western world that the orderly processes of government followed by the American republics is better than the European method as represented by the arbitrary acts of the totalitarian states.

ARMS PROGRAM TO HIKE TAXES

Administration Aides Study 10 Per Cent Increase in U. S. Income Levies.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—A 10 per cent increase in all federal income taxes was discussed in administration circles today to provide funds for expansion of the army and navy.

While President Roosevelt has yet to reach a conclusion on the national defense recommendations he will make to congress in January, he has indicated a national preparedness program will be submitted.

With the government headed for another deficit for this fiscal year, estimated at around $3,000,000,000, the problem of how to finance army and navy expansion was uppermost in the minds of administration leaders.

Expectations were that the military and naval appropriations will total about $1,300,000,000, an increase of about $300,000,000 over the allowance for the present fiscal year.

A 10 per cent boost in income taxes would yield about $270,000,000—more if business continues to expand. The suggestion made by one government financial expert was that congress pass a joint resolution providing for a 10 per cent increase upon all income tax payments.

After the taxpayer's tax has been figured upon present rates, 10 per cent would be added to the amount of tax each individual or corporation is subject to pay under present rates.

BARES SCHEME

Witness Says Spies Planned to Forge Roosevelt's Name.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A scheme to forge President Roosevelt's signature to White House stationery in order to procure information about the United States navy was described in federal court today by Guenther Gustav Rumrich, 32-year-old U. S. army deserter and confessed Nazi spy.

Speaking in a low, dispirited voice as if he were tired of his role in the whole fantastic espionage plot, Rumrich told Judge John C Knox and a jury he had expected to get a lot of money if the plan were carried through.

It was his third day on the witness stand testifying against Erich Glaser, former Mitchel field soldier; Johanna Hofmann, hairdresser on the German liner Europa, and Otto Hermann Voss, airplane mechanic. Rumrich was indicted with them and 14 others but pleaded guilty at the opening of the trial and became one of the government's principal witnesses.

COUNTY SHARES IN RELIEF FUNDS

Richland One of 32 in State to Receive Allocation, Gets $7,153.

Richland county, one of the 32 counties in Ohio certified to share in the distribution of state relief funds, today received $7,153 to apply on the September relief bills, totaling $10,122.

The allocation included $5,529 in state sales tax funds and $1,624 in beer, malt and admission tax receipts.

County commissioners will allocate the state relief funds to the city of Mansfield and other county subdivisions on the basis of their relief needs.

The total relief cost in the city and county last month was the lowest for any single month in more than a year and was less than half the monthly cost last winter.

Only the counties in Ohio with the heaviest relief burdens are eligible to share in the state fund. Ashland and Morrow counties are the only others in this area which received state money.

West, In Ashland Tomorrow, Slated To Get Federal Job

Charles West, former Democratic congressman from the 17th district and now President Roosevelt's contact man, will speak in Ashland Thursday night at the major Democratic rally of the campaign in Ashland county.

His speech will be broadcast over the NBC radio network at 9:30 p. m. It will be the first political speech ever to be broadcast from the county.

Political observers in Washington predicted today that West, who is said to be on a "scouting trip" for the national administration, will have his pick of several federal jobs after the November election.

West was ousted as under secretary of the interior early this year by Secretary Harold Ickes. Since then he has served as a contact man for the president and it is said that he has given President Roosevelt a complete report of his observations gleaned on trips throughout the country.

Friends of West said he had sought to learn which state factions might control delegations to the 1940 national convention.

Other leading Democrats who will speak at the Ashland rally tomorrow night include William A. Ashbrook, veteran 17th district congressman; Clarence Knisley, candidate for state treasurer; Herbert S. Duffy, for attorney general; Carl V. Weygandt, for chief justice of the Ohio supreme court, and Maurice C. Brown, candidate for state senator.

The rally is scheduled to open at 7:45 p. m. in the Ashland opera house.

PROTEST RABIES TREATMENT AS RABID DOG BITES 2 CHILDREN

(By United Press)

MENLO PARK, Cal.—Two children bitten by a rabid dog were refused the Pasteur treatment today by their parents.

Rabies or hydrophobia almost always develops from the bite of a mad dog and hydrophobia causes one of the most agonizing deaths to which man is subject.

The children were Robert Stentiford, 14, and Ruth Hunnel, 14. They were bitten last Thursday—seven days ago. The period of incubation for the hydrophobia virus—transmitted to humans through the saliva of infected dogs—is from six weeks to three months. The Pasteur treatment has been known to be effective when given three weeks after the virus is introduced.

Health authorities called on the parents and reported that they had objected to the Pasteur treatment on two grounds—that the children had not been badly bitten and that the Pasteur treatment was not infallible.

Six persons were bitten by the mad terrier. It was killed and a bacteriological examination determined that it was infected with rabies. The other four persons are undergoing the Pasteur treatment.

Tillman Hunnel, an electrician, father of Ruth, said he asked Dr. R. J. Gerlough, city health officer, if the Pasteur treatment was not sometimes fatal, and that Dr. Gerlough told him that it was.

AUTO INDUSTRY SETS PACE FOR EXPECTED BOOM

General Motors to Re-hire 35,000 as Outlook Gains Beyond Earlier Hopes.

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT—The automobile industry, generally a reliable barometer, moved into production at a faster rate today and aroused widespread hopes for a general business upswing that may extend beyond the near term.

Yesterday's announcement by General Motors corporation of the rehiring of 35,000 factory workers in the next two weeks and the restoration of the salary level existing before last Feb. 28 for 30,000 white collar employes gave substantial backing to the theory that the general industrial outlook has improved beyond summer expectations.

The General Motors announcement supplements notice of increased employment by other motor makers and by producers in steel, textile and other fields.

Plans Revised.

Special significance was attached to the statement by Chairman Alfred P. Sloan, jr., that General Motors corporation felt justified in "revising upward plans made last summer" when, presumably, provision was made for an autumn bulge.

In Washington an administration economist who asked that his name be withheld said the General Motors action might prove the spearhead of a forward movement carrying through fall, winter and spring. The corporation is one of the nation's biggest employers.

President Homer Martin of the United Auto Workers union (CIO) remained skeptical about the potentialities of the motor industry as he conceded the importance of Sloan's announcement.

Martin said it seemed to him General Motors would not be able to rehire all its 1937 employes, "nor is there any assurance General Motors will be able to maintain its employment rolls for very many months."

Meanwhile union officials knew a boom was on at least temporarily for they reported dues collections were double and treble what they had been earlier in the year.

HEAT'S OVER

Rain Brings Cooler Weather; Mercury Hits 13-Year High.

After soaring to a 13-year high of 85 degrees in Mansfield yesterday, the weather did an about face today and there was a hint in the forecast that topcoats and furnace fires would be welcome by tonight.

The prediction of colder tonight and Thursday was born out in today's temperatures, the mercury skidding six degrees in an hour before noon. The reading was 59 at noon in comparison with yesterday afternoon's 85, the highest for Oct. 18 in 13 years. The previous record was 71 on Oct. 18, 1928.

A warming sun retarded winter's first march down the Rocky mountains after a three-day storm covered much of the northwest with snow. Two feet of snow lay in the Salmon mountains region of Idaho where a search continued for two missing hunters lost in the storm. The snow-covered body of a woman was found yesterday near Butte, Mont.

British Air Officials Study Note Found In Wreckage.

LONDON—(AP)—Air ministry authorities investigated today a mid-air crash of two royal air force bombers in which six died, and sought an explanation for a scrawled note found near the wreckage of one plane which read, "What will this plane look like in a few minutes?"

Six bodies were recovered from the smouldering wreckages. Since Jan. 1, 174 British airmen have been killed in 93 accidents.

Husband Objects To Beautifying

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FARIFAX:

My wife is undeniably pretty. And she'd be just as good-looking, if she did her own facial, hand-painting, frizzing, curling and nail-tinting. But all these things she has to have done for her make a pretty big hole in my weekly pay envelope.

Apparently she is satisfied with me and hasn't an eye out for any other fellow. Why does she feel obliged to have her primping done for her? She doesn't have to court me so hard.

LOSING INTEREST.

I wonder if the signature you've given yourself doesn't explain matters, in spite of what you tell me. Does she think you're losing interest, and does she have her hand-painting, frizzing, nail-tinting done to keep you? Why don't you tell her, as you have me, that you're satisfied with her without all these embellishments?

Also, remind her of the adage that when you've once caught the street-car, you stop running.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a sophomore in high school, and on a visit from another state. The only trouble with me is that I'm too fat. Nearly all my friends are only half my size. My "steady" back home says he won't take me out if I don't lose ten pounds, but instead of losing, I gain five. The friends I am visiting are all terribly thin, and are trying to gain weight, so they have rich foods, desserts and things that send the calories up.

Most of the boys like me because I'm a good dancer, but they won't take me out as I'm too fat.

GIRL SOPHOMORE.

I wouldn't do anything about dieting until I had consulted my family doctor. It is impossible for some people to become thin because of glandular difficulties.

If your trouble is glandular, I'm afraid you'll have to put up with it. If your doctor says it is not, brace up and positively decline all desserts, cut out bread and butter. Instead eat butterless whole wheat bread toasted, fruit, spinach, lettuce, etc. Dress your salad with mineral oil. If you'll send me a 3-cent, stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will give you an excellent recipe for making salad dressing with mineral oil. It's seasoned highly enough to kill the taste, and will not add calories.

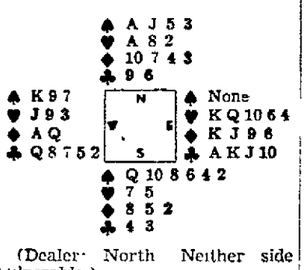
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SAVING THE BACON

If your partner has redoubled and your own hand tells you the side is sure to be disastrously defeated, it is better to stop and ponder the question of raising the bid to a higher level. Maybe you will lose less by going down one more only doubled than by being beaten one less redoubled. Of couse, if your partner sees fit to redouble again, your sole recourse is to find a new partner since the bridge laws do not legalize manslaughter.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

After North passed here and East opened with 1-Heart, South decided upon desperate measures to try to prevent the strong opponents from getting together. He made a psychic overcall of 1-Spade. West bid 2-Clubs, North 2-Spades, East 3-Hearts and South, pleased at finding a nice sacrifice fit, called 3-Spades. West, undaunted, went to 4-Hearts and North to 4-Spades.

East decided to pass this, almost an absolutely forcing pass, obligating West to take some action, since East had opened the bidding. West, preferring not to go on with a higher heart call, doubled the 4-Spades. North, with his well-placed spade honors over whatever West held, was tickled with this and redoubled. East left it in.

South figured a bit. He knew he was sure due to be set several. Two-down would cost 600 points redoubled, three-down only 500 doubled. Three-down would be 1,000 redoubled, four down only 700 doubled. So he bid 5-Spades, which West doubled. North now had sense enough not to redouble. The laugh was that the side got a good score in the duplicate, with only 700 minus, whereas 6-Hearts were bid by East-West at other tables for 980 points.

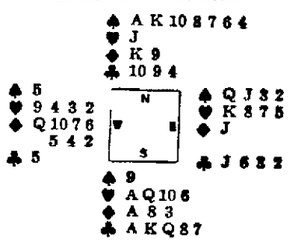
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer. West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West had made a dealer opening bid of 3-Diamonds here, and your side nevertheless reached 7-Clubs, how would you play it against a lead of the heart 2?

Brown sugar mixed with cloves and cinnamon makes a good topping to serve on waffles or pancakes. Of course, plenty of butter will be required.

Salt improves the flavor of candy and frostings.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Miss Whitlock caught her cue deftly.

"Why, I should think so," she said, "if she's going to try to yell whenever anyone comes to the door. However, it's up to you."

I surveyed Avis judicially while the girl's eyes frantically appealed for clemency.

"Somehow, I don't believe she will try that again," I said. "I think you can take your hand away now, but watch her closely while I talk to her."

Heard Some Of It.

I drew up a chair opposite the girl who had caused Mary so many heartaches, and looked steadily at her for almost a minute before I spoke.

"Did you hear the colloquy between Mr. Milner and myself?" I asked.

"Some of it," she returned sulkily.

"Then you realize," I went on, "that while he is very sure you are in here, his hands are tied. He neither can assert his knowledge to me, nor can he make any move to get you out of here."

"I may realize that," she said with a sudden flash of spirit, "but I realize something more—that his hands won't be tied long. Not after he gets in touch with Mr. Veritzen. Do you think he'll let you get away with this?"

"Do you think Mr. Veritzen would like me to know that he had set a spy upon us here?" I retorted far more cooly than I felt, for no one knew better than I the possible consequences of what I was doing.

Easily Settled.

"But that's very easily settled," I went on quickly. "As I said before, either you are here as an agent of Mr. Veritzen's, or else you are here 'on your own,' but making the hotel manager believe that you are in Mr. Veritzen's employ."

"How could I do that?" she countered. "You know as well as I do how impossible it is for anybody to put anything over on Uncle Phil."

"Not for the daughter of a dead friend who has a position in his organization," I retorted. "You have access to special information, and you have the opportunity to do many despicable things. Not the least of these was the anonymous letter you sent to Mary at the time Noel was carrying out his father's directions for the reception of Queen Olga and her daughter."

"I—I don't know what you mean," she said with bravado which showed signs of crumpling at my steady gaze.

Threats For Avis.

"Oh' yes you do," I returned with more assurance than I felt, for although I was morally sure of the truth of my accusation, I had no real proof of it. "And if you are not far more stupid than I think you are, you know very well what we could do to you in punishment for that particular bit of deviltry."

I paused to let my words sink in, then went on with slow deliberation.

"But for the present, we are willing to leave that matter in abeyance," I said. "This present performance of yours is another matter. But it is very easy for me to find out whether you are representing Mr. Veritzen, or simply spying around here on your own account."

I rose and walked to the telephone, put my hand upon the receiver, and then turned to meet her eyes, now filled with uneasiness.

"What are you going to do?" she quavered.

"I am going to find out the truth about this," I said. "Luckily, I know exactly where Mr. Veritzen is tonight. It will take but a few minutes to get him on the telephone, tell him that I found you occupying a room on this floor, which is supposed to be vacant, and ask him if you are here by his orders."

"Five of a Kind."

Five of a kind obviously can't be aces, so they must be the Ladies of Callendar Right—none other than the Misses Annette, Yvonne, Emilie, Marie, and Cecile Dionne in their third starring picture. These high-salaried four-year-olds sing, play five small pianos, romp with Jean Hersholt, their screen guardian, and generally act like themselves. The picture which plays the Ohio the last half of the week has an adult cast with Claire Trevor, Slim Summerville, John Qualen, Henry Wilcoxon and Cesar Romero.

Wedding Dress Girl.

Andrea Leeds, wistful heroine of "Letter of Introduction," has another role to her liking in "Youth Takes a Fling," the current Madison attraction. She plays a salesgirl in the wedding gown department of a large store who sells so many dresses to starry-eyed brides-to-be that her sole aim is to wear one herself. Joel McCrea happens along at the right time. Dorthea Kent and Frank Jenks featured.

Comedy at Park.

"Lady Tubbs" brings Alice Brady to the Park Thursday in the sort of role which she does so well. In this Homer Croy story of the American woman who married a title and put on the ritz, Miss Brady provides comedy, and Anita Louise and Douglas Montgomery give romance. The second feature is "Condemned to Live," with Ralph Morgan, Mischa Auer, Maxien Doyle and Russell Gleason.

Not Too Late To Make Tasty Preserves

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

DON'T BE sad if you failed to make all the jelly and jam you wanted earlier in the year. There are still several kinds left that may be made right now for winter use (if you can wait that long to enjoy their rare flavor). Even if you already did your stint with bottled fruit pectin and seasonal fruits, there is always a place for these always-in-season conserves and marmalades. So go ahead with these recipes that are ready for a "put up job" in your kitchen!

Date cranberry butter requires two packages dates, one quart cranberries, two cups water and two cups brown sugar. Place dates in a large saucepan; wash cranberries and add to dates together with the water. Simmer the mixture for 20 minutes. Rub the cooked fruit through a sieve, add the sugar and stir over low heat until the sugar is dissolved. Cook the mixture until it is the consistency of thick apple sauce (about 15 minutes). Fill small sterilized jars with the hot mixture and seal.

Marmalade Recipe.

Any Month marmalade is our name for this recipe, and when you read the ingredients, you'll know why. They include two cups dried peaches one-half cup candied orange peel, one-quarter cup finely-chopped candied ginger, one cup or one-half pound sugar; one-half cup light corn syrup and two and one-half cups water. Wash peaches in hot water, drain, grind in food chopper, using medium cutter. Combine with orange peel and ginger. Mix sugar, syrup and water, bring to boil in large preserving kettle, add fruit mixture. Boil briskly for about 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Pour into hot, sterilized jelly glasses; seal immediately with paraffin.

Three-fruit marmalade requires two cups or ten ounces thinly-sliced grapefruit, one and one-quarter cups or seven ounces sliced oranges, one-half cup or two ounces thinly-sliced lemon, two and three-quarters quarts water and sugar. Wash fruit, wipe dry and measure after slicing. Add water and allow to stand overnight in preserving kettle. Next morning, cook, uncovered, about 20 minutes or until tender. Let stand about 10 hours or overnight. Measure fruit and juice, and add an equal amount of sugar. Boil rapidly 45 minutes to one hour, or until it sheets from a silver or metal spoon (220 F). Pour into hot, sterilized jelly glasses; seal immediately with paraffin. Quarter citrus fruit before slicing thin, remove seeds and discard ends.

Banana pineapple jam — now there's something! It requires one and one-half cups mashed ripe bananas (4 or 5), two and one-half cups (No. 2 can) crushed pineapple, seven and one-half cups sugar and one bottle liquid pectin. Measure prepared fruit and sugar into large kettle, mix well and bring to full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in liquid pectin. Skim. Pour quickly, paraffin at once.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, October 20.

SURPRISE and adventure mark the forecast for this day, judging by the interesting planetary configurations. Sudden and probably unforeseen adventures may arise with breathless precipitancy, changing the plans and prospects with radical force, and drastically reshaping the destiny. Change and decisions should be made with much keen attention and analysis, as secret influences seem to figure. There may be peculiar correspondence in which the personal relations have significance.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of sudden events and probably radical upheavals of far-reaching effect on the future career. These may be precipitated with great surprise and may come from a hidden or strange source. But they may bring a chain of new adventures.

A child born on this day may be gifted with many outstanding talents which may gain for it recognition from those in high places and a conspicuous career, possibly in a place far from its birth.

Band In Good Graces Again

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

FOOTBALL fans are the same everywhere. When the home team wins, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Phan are too busy celebrating to find fault with anything. But when their prides lose, Mr. and Mrs. Phan can become quite critical, not only against the football team, either.

Mansfield is currently a city of critical fans. Few expected the Tygers to trim the sails of Massillon, but they figured that the margin shouldn't have been so one-sided. So, in their disgust, they picked on the band and cheerleaders, in addition to the Tygers.

J. Merton Holcombe's band didn't belong in the same league with Massillon's flashy "swing" unit, they said. Mansfield's organized cheering was pitiful, we heard. Sand boxes should have been placed at the disposal of the cheer leaders as they appeared to be more interested in digging into the cinders on the track than leading rah-rahs, according to the critics.

Mansfield's decisive triumph over Hammond, Ind., reduced some of the criticism toward the football team. But it returned when the Tygers failed to beat weak Columbus East, a team without a victory, by a larger margin. The band came in for a panning,too, because it didn't stunt (why we don't know).

Then came the Sandusky game. Mansfield rated a chance to beat the Blue Streaks. But what happened? The Tygers played perfect "stooges" to a wide-awake Sandusky aggregation in a 45 to 0 rout.

This trimming brought out a new batch of criticism, with virtually everybody connected with the football team from Coach Russ Murphy on down to the student managers coming in for a dig here and there.

But the band escaped criticism. It did a fancy job of maneuvering out there on Strobel field. Not only did Mansfield followers like it, but Sanduskians, too. "We've got the best band in the state," we overheard one remark after the game. He was the same fellow who just two weeks ago had fashioned a mental noose for the bandsmen.

But that's football. You're on top when you win, but, boy, when you lose! Look out for those barbed tongues.

* * * * *

Popular Question: 'What's Wrong With Tygers?'

SINCE the Sandusky walloping, the most popular question on the Mansfield streets is "What's wrong with the Tygers?"

This question is being asked everywhere. But no two persons seem to have the same answer. Even Coach Murphy appears a bit dazed about it all.

"They kicked us down in the corner and kept us there," Murphy explains. It was a new experience for Murphy, who never coached a team which produced a poorer performance.

Mansfield's inexperience was a vital factor in the poor exhibition. But not the chief contribution to the defeat. Poor punting and ineffective tackling in the open, not to mention a complete demoralization of the team early in the game caused by its failure to escape its own territory, were probably the chief reasons for the whipping.

Had Rich Nagle, who, incidentally, was handicapped by a bad foot, gotten off one of his customary good boots the first time he kicked against Sandusky Saturday, a different story might have been written.

Mansfield may not have beaten the Blue Streaks but we've not yet seen a Sandusky, or a Massillon, or Canton McKinley team, for that matter, which was 45 points better than any Tyger edition.

The Tygers manufactured the breaks for Coach Bob Whittaker's men, and they merely took advantage of them to run up the most decisive victory in the rivalry.

EDDIE BRIETZ SAYS: Good for Pie Traynor. . . . If anyone ever deserved another chance it was Pie, one of the hardest workers and nicest fellows in the game. . . . Whew, it's hot up here. . . . More like the middle of the baseball season than the middle of football. . . . Henry Armstrong looks well. . . . Says that ugly cut on his lower lip has healed and that he is ready to get to work. . . . He'll have his hands full with Garcia, though. . . . They're already talking about the Pitt-Fordham game on the 29th. . . . And wondering what the Fordhams' young Len Eshmont will do against that Pitt line. . . . New York sports writers want to know why, if North Carolina's Sweet Lalanne is such a ball of fire, he didn't play more against New York U. . . . George Stirnweiss, who played in his place, did enough, we thought.

Tallies In Last 19 Seconds To Hand Newman First Loss

SCORING the only touchdown in the last 19 seconds of play, Bushnell handed Newman its first defeat in the Grade School touch football league at the Armory yesterday by a 7 to 0 score. Brooks scored through tackle from the six for Bushnell and also added the point. The victory was the fourth in a row for the winners.

West Fifth remained in a tie with Bushnell by defeating Hedges, 12 to 6, at Hedges field. Miller and Brauchler tallied for West Fifth in the second and third periods. Carlyle scored for the losers.

Moorhead tallied twice and Konenovitch once as Bowman defeated Prospect 18 to 8, at Simpson field. Miller tallied for Prospect in the first period. Moorhead was tackled behind his own goal line to give Prospect a safety.

A safety in the fourth period gave Western an 8 to 7 victory over Carpenter at North park. Dent scored for Western in the third period. Goettle tallied for the losers in the final quarter, with Vovick contributing the extra point.

Powers Figures Notre Dame Backs Are Due to Step Out in Carnegie Game.

By FRANCIS J. POWERS

CHICAGO—(INS)—Always mindful of my blood pressure I refuse to assist Elmer Layden worry about Notre Dame's engagement with Carnegie Tech Saturday. I don't think the Skibos will do much of anything to the Irish and trust that candid opinion will not make Coach Bill Kern forget the old fraternity grip.

There is no difficulty recalling that Carnegie topped Notre Dame 9 to 7 last season but this is a different year and certainly a different Irish team. Just what has Carnegie done to make it so feared by Layden and also Jock Sutherland whose Panthers date it two weeks hence? Litle except defeat Holy Cross by the point after touchdown for the lopsided victories over Davis Elkins and Wittenberg can be tossed aside as practice.

Irish Hold Edge.

The Carnegie line will give away 16 pounds and it is doubted any team can do that against the 1938 Irish. Notre Dame's first forwards average 201 pounds but have no useless bulk for the heaviest members are Beinor and Kell, tackles at 209. The Irish can match the Scots in agility and being even on that score will utilize the additional poundage to good advantage. Notre Dame has two, maybe three, competent lines and in man power, Carnegie will be at a loss.

After testing games with Georgia Tech and Illinois, the Irish should have achieved mid-season smoothness of operation and this may be the game in which the backs will start rolling by. Notre Dame has beaten the Scots 11 out of 15 games but still likes to lay it on in a fair measure. Irish followers never will forget how the 1926 Tech team beat Notre Dame while Knute Rockne was taking in the Army-Navy game on Soldier Field, so every victory is a lick in the right direction.

Tech has one good back field in Carnelly, Condit, Muha and Lee and in the fullback claim another John Marcis the line bucker who powered the 1928 team to a 27 to 7 victory over one of Rockne's most hapless combinations.

They're Tough, Too.

Tech showed a fine pass defense against Holy Cross and intercepted six of the Crusaders' 16 aerials but Notre Dame may not find it necessary to depend on a glider attack. The Scots have yet to encounter the likes of Slippery Sheridan, Stevenson or Saggau or even Tonelli, Thesing, Gottsacker Simonich or Peipul, who are a few of the fullbacks Layden has on call.

Clark in Line to Set New Pro Scoring Mark.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The educated toe of Earl (Dutch) Clark may earn the famous playing coach of the Detroit Lions a new all-time National league scoring record.

Clark, in less than six seasons in the professional game, has tied the mark of 301 points established in 1932 by Verne Lewellen, former Green Bay Packer star. Against Cleveland this season he kicked a field goal and a point after touchdown to tie Lewellen's mark, established in nine seasons of play.

Wrestling? No, It's Feather Title Fight

At first glance this looks like a picture of a wrestling match, but it isn't. It's a sample of the "boxing" exhibited by Joey Archibald (top) and Mike Belloise in their featherweight title bout in New York City. Archibald, of Pawtucket, R. I., took the decision, and became the new champ.

THEBAUD, BLUENOSE SET TO RESUME CUP RACE

GLOUCESTER, Mass. — (U.P.) — Barring dead calm and pea-soup fog, the Gertrude L. Thebaud and Bluenose will resume racing for the International Fishermen's trophy today.

Deadlocked at one victory each, the rival salt water skippers are anxious to end this best of five series which has been postponed five times over the last 10 days. Capt. Ben Pine sailed his American challenger to victory in the first race, and Capt. Angus Walters, in his defending Canadian champion Bluenose, tied it by winning the second heat.

Pitt Brews Air Raid to Play Foes at Own Game

By JUDSON BAILEY

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Believe it or not but Pitt, the greatest land lubber of them all, has become air-minded.

Ever since the Panthers swept over Ohio State in 1936 without resorting to a single pass the idea has been growing that the sly auld Scot, Jock Sutherland, was allergic to aerials.

For example, the Panthers passed only once in beating Temple 28 to 6 earlier this season and in ten games last year there were only three in which Pitt passed more than four times.

"The result," Sutherland said today, "has been that every team we play sets up a tight defense against our running attack and we've found it increasingly hard to gain.

"We're not going to try any passes behind our own goal line," he smiled, "but we're going to use passes a great deal more than we have in the past.

"We've been forced into it in order to open up the other fellow's defenses and now we're going to be prepared to play them at their own game.

All-America Marshall Goldberg, who has done most of the passing for Pitt's first string this year, completing four of the eight he has attempted, probably will continue to be in general charge of the air force. But Jock never does things half way and he has half a dozen other backs laboring on the firing line.

Sutherland's conversion to the benefits of the forward pass was not instantaneous although Wisconsin's effective blockade last Saturday probably determined him on putting his plans in force at once.

He already had experimented a week before with an historic flurry of 18 passes against Duquesne, which should have been the handwriting on the wall, if Coach Matty Bell of Southern Methodist, personally scouting the game, recognized it.

The Mustangs, with a reputation as an aerial circus, invade Pittsburgh this week-end. It would be a rich Scotch joke on a lot of people if the Texans tried to cross up Pitt with a running attack and the Panthers retorted with some razzle-dazzle.

Whippet Eleven Rules Favorite

Query's All-Senior Team Not Expected to Suffer Let-Down for Renewal of Ancient Series.

By OSCAR RUHL

HOME of one of the first professional football teams in the country, Shelby can recall without much difficulty a number of good teams without once mentioning Johnny Miller's old Shelby Blues.

Since joining up with the N. C. O. conference in 1925, Shelby high school has produced three championship teams, and figured as a factor in a number of other campaigns.

But all Shelby takes its hat off to the edition assembled by Coach Bill Query this season.

Seniors Plentiful.

It is virtually an all-senior team, which broke out in title fever this fall after experiencing only an ordinary season last year.

There is not a mark on the record as Shelby prepares this week for the annual tussle with Mansfield's twice-beaten Tygers and it may still own it after Saturday's meeting at Skiles field.

Despite the Sandusky and Massillon whippings, Mansfield stacks up as one of the toughest foes remaining on the Shelby schedule. It is a game that Shelby would rather win than any other, too.

Every team is susceptible to a let-down, but there is too much tradition connected with the Mansfield series to expect the Whippets to fall victims to overconfidence. The Whippets have too many old scores to square Saturday.

The difference in the caliber of foes the two teams have met is wide, but Shelby will go into the ball game the favorite on the strength of its brilliant record.

It actually deserves this distinction, too. The writer is satisfied that Shelby packs strength of an A-No. 1 brand after witnessing one performance.

No common foes have been met by the two rivals to provide a comparison, but the consistency of Shelby's play cannot be disregarded. Neither can the fact that the Whippets have not been tested in any game this season.

Shelby will encounter more weight than they did in any other game this season, but it is more experienced and speedier.

The Whippets boast of one of the finest backs in the state in Harold Bliss, a consistent thrower and kicker in Joe Miller, a slippery ball carrier in Bob Baker and an adept blocker in Jim Terman, who can also be used to advantage on the end of passes and placekicks.

Shelby also boasts a well-balanced line that has not permitted a touchdown this season. Not exactly heavy, but aggressive. It has a pretty good idea of how to block, too.

End With Few Peers.

Bill Yosick is an end with few peers in neighborhood grid circles. He's faster than greased lightning, first to get down on kicks and usually first to get his hands on passes thrown in his general direction.

If Mansfield plays the way it did against Sandusky, it will take another whipping. But if the Tygers stage a comeback, Shelby may feel the sting of the rebound.

But no matter which teams wins, a great ball game will probably develop, with one of the largest crowds in Shelby history on hand to witness the ancient rivalry.

Bantams Play Skippie Team In Cleveland

Dandakis Works Squad Hard for Sunday's Tilt.

Defeated by one of the strongest clubs in Ohio midget grid circles in their debut, Clyde Adams' Bantams have resumed work on the practice field for their next engagement.

Sunday Coach Harry Dandakis' bantamweights will go to Cleveland to engage the Skippies, who rate with the ranking 130-pound clubs in the state.

The Skippies have dropped only two decisions this season. One of the defeats was handed by the DeLuce Bismarcks, who trimmed the Mansfield team, 25 to 0, Sunday, and the other came in a game with the Harris Paints of Wooster.

Inexperience was a factor in the Adams' team defeat Sunday, but the squad is coming along fine, and Coach Dandakis expects it to develop into a fairly strong outfit before the season comes to a close.

The Mansfield team is holding daily workouts at Prospect park at 5 p. m., and a defense against passes is being stressed in drills this week.

Crack Passer With Chicago

Hamity May Cause Buckeyes Some Trouble Saturday.

COLUMBUS — (INS)—Minus the acclaim which has usually accompanied the mid-season stretch drive, Ohio State's football team resigned itself to its background status today and concentrated seriously on the excellent possibilities of winning Saturday's tilt against Chicago.

Lightly, the game is classified as a breather. Delving into the record book the fact is brought to light that in 1935 or thereabouts, State visited the Windy City for a breather with the Maroons. In order to win, the Scarlet and Gray eleven had to come from behind and play their heads off. It was a narrow escape from folly.

In Saturday's game, the Buckeye forward wall will outweigh the midway linemen about 26 pounds to the man and there is a decided weight advantage favoring Ohio in the backfield.

A significant change in the Chicago eleven is the switching of Ed Valorz, midway wrestling champ, from right halfback to fullback. Valorz replaces Morton Goodstein.

Most feared of the Chicagoans is Capt. Lewis Hamity, quarterback, who passes as frequently as a disinterested bridge player and as accurately as Benny Friedman used to.

Whether or not Schmidt plans to start his first or second team is a question but all of the Buckeyes are in fair physical condition with the exception of Guard Vic Marino who has a bad ankle. He should be in shape for Saturday's game, though.

MARKET PRICES FALTER AFTER HIGHER OPENING

Selling Outweighs Buying as Traders Refuse to Follow Initial Advance.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selling outweighed buying in the stock market today and prices slipped after opening moderately higher for most shares.

Losers included General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Anaconda Copper, Montgomery Ward and Westinghouse Electric.

Many traders were reluctant to following the initial advance because the market the past week appeared to have entered an area of increasing supply. Bonds and commodities generally held their own.

Declining prices for some finished steel products continued to command wide attention.

"Iron Age" said lower prices had brought increased "bargain" buying on the products affected but that in other products the weakening of the quotation structure tended to make buyers hesitant on a chance price cutting might spread.

In contrast with steel earning trends, samplings of third quarter profits in other lines indicated improvement as a result of the business upturn that became visible after mid-year.

ORDINANCE NO 38-182

By Mr. Berg:

An ordinance providing for the issuing of bonds in anticipation of the collection of special assessments for the improvements herein named, and combining and consolidating in a single issue bonds previously authorized for the property, share of said improvements.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MANSFIELD, STATE OF OHIO:

Section 1. That it is deemed necessary to issue and there shall be issued the bonds of the City of Mansfield in the principal sum of $19,350.00 to pay notes previously issued and about to mature for the purpose of raising money in anticipation of the collection of special assessments for the improvement of the following named various streets of said city, and and including an amount sufficient to pay the interest thereon until said assessments are available, the property share of the cost of said street improvement being hereby combined and consolidated into a single issue of bonds covering the following previously authorized improvements, to wit:

POPEYE— That's No Way to Treat a Lady! By Segar

PAM—"Some One Else!" By A. W. Brewerton

PAM'S EYES WERE MISTY--SHE WAS DEEPLY AFFECTED BY KEITH PAIGE'S SINCERE DECLARATION!
I--I WISH I COULD TELL YOU JUST HOW I FEEL--TOWARD YOU, MR. PAIGE--YOU HAVE BEEN SO GRAND, SO WONDERFUL, TO ME--AND I DO APPRECIATE IT SO, SO VERY MUCH--AND NOW, YOUR SHOWING ME SUCH--HIGH REGARD--WANTING TO MARRY ME-- 10-19
--IT--IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE!--I--I WONDER--DO I DESERVE SUCH LOVE FROM YOU!?--I--I FEEL A GREAT AFFECTION FOR YOU, MR. PAIGE--NO ONE HAS EVER BEEN NICER--KINDER TO ME IN ALL MY LIFE--BUT, YOU'RE RIGHT, I DO NOT LOVE YOU, AS--AS I SHOULD TO MARRY YOU-- AND--AND I DON'T BELIEVE IT'S BECAUSE YOU ARE SO MUCH OLDER THAN I--IT--IT'S BECAUSE--THERE'S SOME ONE ELSE!
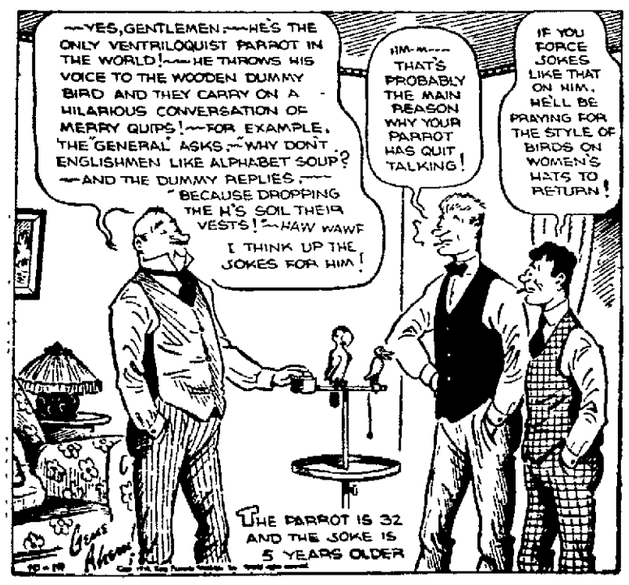
THAT'S ALL RIGHT, MY DEAR--I'M NOT SURPRISED--BUT--YOU'RE NOT MARRIED YET!--I STILL CAN HOPE!
I JUST WANT YOU TO KNOW HOW I FEEL--AND ALWAYS WILL!--LET'S NOT SPEAK OF IT ANY MORE, NOW--IT'S LATE--GOOD NIGHT--AND GOD BLESS YOU, MY DEAR!

JUDGE PUFFLE By Gene Ahern



--YES, GENTLEMEN--HE'S THE ONLY VENTRILOQUIST PARROT IN THE WORLD!--HE THROWS HIS VOICE TO THE WOODEN DUMMY BIRD AND THEY CARRY ON A HILARIOUS CONVERSATION OF MERRY QUIPS!--FOR EXAMPLE, THE "GENERAL" ASKS--"WHY DON'T ENGLISHMEN LIKE ALPHABET SOUP?"--AND THE DUMMY REPLIES--"BECAUSE DROPPING THE H'S SOIL THEIR VESTS!"--HAW WAWF
HM-M--THAT'S PROBABLY THE MAIN REASON WHY YOUR PARROT HAS QUIT TALKING!
I THINK UP THE JOKES FOR HIM!
IF YOU FORCE JOKES LIKE THAT ON HIM, HE'LL BE PRAYING FOR THE STYLE OF BIRDS ON WOMEN'S HATS TO RETURN!
THE PARROT IS 32 AND THE JOKE IS 5 YEARS OLDER

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—His Public. By Harold Gray

OH, I DO WISH MR. GUDGE WOULD RETURN SOON-
YES-PEOPLE ARE SAYING SUCH TERRIBLE THINGS ABOUT HIM-
I NEVER SAW SUCH A TOWN FOR GOSSIPS-
10-19-38
WHY, THEY EVEN HINT HE WAS TO BLAME FOR THAT AWFUL THING--ACE CHANCE AND THOSE FOUR THUGS-
HUMPH-IF YOU ASK ME, I THINK THAT WAS ALL JUST A GRUDGE-
NO DOUBT ACE HAD CHEATED THOSE MEN AT CARDS-
CERTAINLY-HOW ABSURD TO TRY TO INVOLVE DEAR MR. GUDGE-
WHY, MR. GUDGE IS THE SOUL OF HONOR
HE'LL CLEAR HIMSELF WHEN HE RETURNS-
HE'S SO LIBERAL-HE ALWAYS GIVES TO ALL MY CHARITIES. THE DEAR MAN-
HE'LL SOON BE BACK-WHY, HE LOVES OUR TOWN-
JUST THIRTY YEARS-I RECALL HE CAME JUST AFTER TH' HANGIN' OF-THAT MAN WHO KILLED CAPTN ALDEN-
HE'S BEEN OUR LEADING CITIZEN FOR THIRTY YEARS AT LEAST-

THE NEBBS—Well, Now, What's It All About? By Sol Hess

HERE IS THE FAMOUS BLUE-BIRD DIAMOND RIVALED ONLY IN BRILLIANCE BY THE SUN ITSELF--OWNED BY STEVE, BROTHER OF RUDY NEBB
10-19
HONEST, OBIE, I'M NOT KIDDING--THAT BROTHER OF MINE HAS A DIAMOND YOU COULDN'T LIFT WITH TWEEZERS--YOU GOTTA USE ICE TONGS
NOKAGE A JIG IN EVERY STONE
AND IT'S AS BLUE AS THE HEAVENS ON A PRETTY DAY AND HE SAYS IT'S GOT NO FLAWS--AS CLEAN AS AN ANGEL'S DREAM
WHAT GOOD IS IT? NOBODY CAN WEAR IT AND BIG DIAMONDS HAVE ALWAYS BEEN UNLUCKY--IT WOULD TAKE A NEBB TO MAKE A DUMB INVESTMENT LIKE THAT!
LISTEN, SHRIMP, BROTHER STEVE HAS GOT SO MUCH MONEY I'LL BET IT DIDN'T TAKE HIM AS LONG TO BUY IT AS THAT 50-CENT PIPE YOU BOUGHT--AN HOUR AND 10 MINUTES--AND IT TOOK YOU AN HOUR AND THEN YOU WANTED A 30-DAY TRIAL ON IT

WHEN LT BARRY OF THE COAST GUARD AIR PATROL FAILED TO LOCATE THE RENDEZVOUS OF THE AERIAL PIRATES WHO LOOTED THE YACHT, SEA NYMPH, AND ABDUCTED ITS OWNER AND HIS DAUGHTER, TOMMY HAD A HUNCH!
HE DECIDED TO GO TO THE HOME OF ZEKE POTTS, AN OLD FRIEND, WHO KNOWS THE HISTORY AND LORE OF MOST OF THE FLORIDA KEYS. AND SO..
UM MM!..WELL, TOMMY, THERE ARE SEVERAL UNINHABITATED ISLANDS OFF THE COAST WHERE PLUME HUNTERS AND OTHER LAW VIOLATORS WOULD NATURALLY TAKE REFUGE
BUT AMONG THESE TEN THOUSAND OR MORE LONELY ARCHIPELAGOS THERE EXISTS ONE SOMEWHERE OFF THE SOUTHWESTERN TIP OF FLORIDA
WHICH MIGHT PROVIDE AN IDEAL RETREAT FOR CRIMINALS SAFE FROM PRYING EYES!
WHERE IS THIS ISLAND?

as candidate for the 17th district congress seat. He is opposed by William A. Ashbrook, veteran member of congress, of Johnstown, Licking county.

From sources high in the party, it was learned that the argument to be used was that the Republican leadership in the county had accepted Woodward as the party candidate, while at the same time refusing to embrace the Townsend plan.

They also said they had learned of attempts by Republican leaders to influence aged Democratic voters to support Woodward, arguing that he would work for the $200 a month pension the Townsend plan would provide.

Meanwhile, the first of a series of Democratic ward meetings will get underway Friday night, intended primarily for persons of Hungarian descent. The rally will be held at the Sons of Herman hall, Orange street.

Speakers at the meeting which is expected to attract 250 voters from the Fifth ward will be Ralph C. Lutz, candidate for re-election to the state legislature; C. L. Mitchell, candidate for re-election as county commissioner, and John Correll, president of the Richland county Young Democratic club.

W. J. Rogers, representing the state treasurer's office, will speak at a rally tomorrow night of the Richland county Colored Democratic club at the organization's headquarters at 246 North Diamond street.

Saturday more than 200 women from the 8th and 17th districts are expected here for a Democratic luncheon meeting at the Mansfield Leland hotel.

Charles Sawyer, candidate for governor and Robert J. Bulkley, candidate for U. S. senator, will be the chief speakers at both the afternoon meeting and the rally which will be held at Democratic headquarters in the evening.

Dem Nominee Expected to Say Davey Aligns Self With Bricker Campaign.

er. At least the Democratic chieftains attached enough importance to the speech to arrange for a half-hour broadcast from 9 to 9:30 p. m.

Woos Pension Votes.

If Sawyer makes the Davey-Bricker pact charge it will be construed as a move of the Democrats to wean the votes of 110,000 old age pensioners, who have been placed in the middle by Davey's wrangle with the federal social security board.

The claim, for which the Democrats purport to have plenty of proof, also would tend to spoil any overtures Bricker has made toward the labor vote, veteran politicians believe.

At Zanesville Sawyer told Democrats that highway employes "have nothing to fear if they perform their tasks efficiently." He urged the audience to compare his achievements with those of his opponent and promised a business-like administration.

At Coshocton concerted support of union labor in Ohio was claimed by Sawyer, last night in this home town of William Green, American Federation of Labor president.

"I have the support of all branches of organized labor," Sawyer told an audience in courthouse square. He accused Republican leaders of attempting to create an impression that union ranks in the state were divided on campaign allegiance.

The address was one of five during Sawyer's swing through west-central Ohio, starting at Wooster. There he pledged full benefits for old age pensioners through co-operation with the federal social security board to insure payment of the government's half of pensions to the state's 111,000 recipients.

Sawyer also spoke in Millersburg and Newark. In Newark he outlined a plan for reorganization of the state highway department and advocated its administration by a bi-partisan board.

"I want to assure you," the message said, "that Fascist Italy is and will remain fraternally linked with you until your victory."

A meeting of the Fascist grand council ended early today after its members were understood to have discussed foreign affairs and proposals set forth by the supreme committee of autarchy. The council adjourned until Nov. 2.

employe representation plans now in effect in Massillon, Canton, Youngstown, Warren and Cleveland.

Further, the board ordered Republic to dismiss all workers hired after the strike if necessary to reinstate strikers.

Today's decision charges violations of the Wagner labor act to Republic, which is headed by Tom Girdler, militant foe of John L. Lewis' CIO, in a number of instances. The decision said the company dominated its employe organizations in the five Ohio plants, discharged 26 workers for union activities, and shut down the Canton Tin Plate mill and the Massillon plant for the specific purpose of discouraging union organization.

Penalties for the lock-outs at Canton and Massillon were estimated by board experts to total $41,000 for the approximately 15 days at Canton and three days at Massillon.

press his attitude toward sit-down strikes.

"There is no reason," he said, "why the people of Ohio should sit idly by and wait for someone in Washington to do something about unemployment. . . . We can do much to help ourselves."

A picture of heavier consumer taxes, harassment of business and increased labor difficulties under the New Deal was sketched at Marion today by Republican national chairman John Hamilton.

Hamilton came here for meetings and to lay a wreath on the tomb of the late Warren G. Harding, late Republican president, in an extensive Buckeye tour in behalf of his party's candidates.

"In the last Republican administration," he said, "60 per cent of the government income was derived from income taxes; 40 per cent from consumer taxes. In the last fiscal year of the Roosevelt administration, 40 per cent of the government revenue came from income taxes and 60 per cent from indirect taxes on consumers."

Robert A. Taft and Mrs. Taft loosed a double-barrelled barrage of campaign talks today in the Cincinnatian's drive for the U. S. senate seat now held by Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland Democrat.

Taft attacked what he termed new socialistic plans of the national administration in a talk at Toledo.

"This is a time when we must determine whether we are going forward on a socialistic plan or back to the fundamental American government," Taft said.

In earlier addresses at Bowling Green and Fremont, Taft warned that the nation was headed for an economic breakdown and advocated relaxation of business regulations, decreased taxes and reduction of the national debt.

Mrs. Taft told a women's meeting at Wilmington that New Deal spending would impair American living standards and increase the tax burden now shouldered mainly by the average American home.

Armless Ohio Driver Sues To Get License

XENIA —(AP)— Born without arms but described as a competent automobile and tractor operator, Paul E. Layton, 21, of nearby Osborn, requested common pleas court today to compel the state to honor his application for renewal of his license to operate a car.

Judge George H. Smith held last June that Layton's license to drive could not be revoked except upon court conviction for violation of the drivers license statute.

G. O. P. Chairman Announces Party Backs Townsendite But Not Townsend Plan.

"The Republican party welcomes the Townsend vote, but it doesn't take the responsibility of backing the plan," he asserted.

Woodward is scheduled to talk at the same rally with Taft at Republican headquarters on North Main street at 7:30 p. m. today. Don Ebright, Akron, Republican candidate for state treasurer, and Charles Montgomery, who is a candidate for re-election to the Fifth district court of appeals, also are to make brief talks tonight.

Taft will speak at 7:30 p. m. and then will go to Ashland for an address at a Republican rally there.

While Taft and Ebright were expected to aim their attack at New Deal spending and the increased cost of state government under the Democratic administration, Richland county Republicans planned to inject the Communist issue into their campaign.

Displaying a handbill issued by the Cleveland headquarters of the Communist party endorsing the Democratic slate of candidates for state offices and Robert J. Bulkley for re-election to the U. S. senate, Hardy said "Republicans do not care for that kind of backing."

SWISS NEXT IN HITLER'S PLANS

Ex-Reichstag Member Predicts That Groundwork for New Anschluss Already Laid.

a plan has been started in Switzerland, that storm troops of Germany and Nazi agents are already at work in that independent state which has been self-governing for more than a hundred years. More than two-thirds of the Swiss people speak German, he said. A similar plan is being launched in Alsace-Lorraine and British colonies that were German possessions before the war.

Seger urged the American people not to judge Germans by the acts of Hitler nor the publicity that emerges from the Nazi press. He declared that despite the plebiscites, despite the show of allegiance to Hitler, the dictator has never had a majority of the people of Germany with him, but that in the grip of a totalitarian state and its dictator, where there is no such a thing as civil rights, all people must show a 100 per cent loyalty.

"No American, steeped in the traditions of more than a century and a half of democracy, can possibly conceive the situation in Germany today," he said. "There is no such thing as personal liberty nor civil rights; the state not only controls the government but the private life of every citizen as well. Everything that is not compulsory is forbidden.

"There is no such thing as privacy of the mails. Every letter written by a private citizen may be opened and read by any government or local official. In a period of three years 229,000 citizens were sentenced to 600,000 years in prison for minor political offenses, the majority of which were opinions expressed in private letters."

Seger read a portion of the Nazi law which refers to "protective custody." It says in effect that:

"Any person may be arrested and imprisoned for any length of time, and held without charge or trial, if any officer suspects that person of having said, or a possibility of saying in the future, any disloyal utterance against the state."

The dismemberment of Czechoslovakia was a futile and uncalled for gesture on the part of Great Britain and France, Seger believes, contending that Hitler could have been stopped without war, and that he will continue his march across Europe until he is stopped.

Seger was introduced by Atty. C. H. Henkel, who was program chairman.

U. S. Probes Death Threat Sent Allison on Pensions

'BEWARE,' SAYS NOTE MAILED FINANCE HEAD

Cut in Pensions Amounts to 'Death Warrant,' Message Tells Officer.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — A letter warning M Ray Allison, state finance director, that a cut in old age pensions would be tantamount to signing "his own death warrant" was turned over to postal authorities today for investigation.

Hand-letered on white stationery, the note read:

"M. Ray Allison: The man that signs the cut in pensions signs his own death warrant. Beware chiseler."

It was dated at Springfield, Oct. 15 and postmarked there the following day.

A dispute between Gov. Martin L. Davey and the federal social security board resulted in an order by the board for withholding of the government's half of funds to Ohio pensioners. The board said the money would not be forthcoming until administrative changes were made in the state's division of aid for the aged.

Files New Action.

Edgar S. Byers, Cleveland Heights attorney, who asked the Ohio supreme court to require the changes, filed a new action late yesterday asking a peremptory writ of mandamus against Davey, Welfare Director Margaret Allman and Wray Bevens, pension division chief.

Davey, answering the original suit, asked elimination of most of Byers' petition as a taxpayer on the ground that the matter of state law was not involved. In the counter-motion, Byers sought judgment for himself.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson has said he would delay for a few days the writing of checks for the state's share of pension which nominally average $23 to 11,000 aged persons.

In a long-distance telephone call to President Roosevelt's home at Hyde Park, N. Y., Ferguson was informed by a presidential secretary to submit data on the impasse immediately.

The president last night in a press conference expressed the opinion that the situation would be adjusted satisfactorily.

Frees Husband In 'Mercy Slaying' of Wife Near Death

MINEOLA, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Harry C. Johnson, wealthy retired gasoline distributor who killed his hopelessly ill wife, Jennie, because he felt sorry for her, was released from the prison ward of Meadowbrook hospital today. The Nassau county grand jury had declined to indict him.

Johnson, 65, and his wife had been married 39 years. She suffered from a stomach cancer and begged him repeatedly to end her misery. Late in September, in great agony, she asked him again.

On October 1, Johnson dismissed the maid and his wife's nurse from their home in Hewlett, strung a hose from a gas jet in the basement in the cellar to her bedroom, sealed up the crevices of the door and turned on the gas.

Later, Mrs. Johnson's physician examined her and called the police. Johnson was charged with first degree murder and yesterday the evidence was presented to the grand jury.

A blood analysis by Dr. Abraham W. Freireich, county toxicologist, showed that Mrs. Johnson had died of asphyxiation, rather than cancer.

Up and Down THE STREET

What should be good news to Mansfield sportsmen is the word that the Charles Mill dam reservoir will provide the best hunting and fishing grounds in the entire Muskingum water conservancy district. The authority for the statement is Carl Wachenschwanz, new game management agent of the dam. Wachenschwanz, who was located at other dams in the district before his transfer, estimates that only about 200 of the 1,350 acres under water are more than eight feet deep, which should provide perfect fishing when the reservoir is thrown open for this purpose.

A Mansfield business man is the target for a lot of joshing about his "dizzy spells." It happened that he had an appointment with a chiropodist and a little after the appointed hour, his office girl called the foot doctor and said that her boss couldn't come over right away as he was having a "dizzy spell." When he finally did arrive, the chiropodist was very considerate, giving him an easy chair and asking him how he felt. The patient said enthusiastically that he had never felt better in his life. "How long have you been having dizzy spells?" the doctor asked, and then understanding hit them both at once and they roared. The girl had said "busy spell."

It's going to be a hard winter for the squirrels and lovers of nut cake and candy, reports from the rural areas around Mansfield indicate. Walnut and hickory trees are showing one of the smallest crops in years, and chestnut trees, once common in this area, are virtually all dead. the victims of a blight. Nature enthusiasts give no reason for the short crop of nuts, explaining that it is "just an off year" for them.

Proceeds will go toward the expenses of their class party and other graduation events.

14 ESCAPE AS PLANE BURNS

Hero Pilot Lands Safely as Blazing Airliner Loses Motor in Air.

crashing to the ground, with flames streaming out behind.

The passengers watched, grim-faced but calmly, as the motor streaked earthward.

Flames licked around the pilot and the co-pilot, but they kept their hands on the controls—apparently oblivious to what appeared to be almost certain death.

With only the light from the moon and the glare from his burning ship to guide him, Pilot Hissong brought the plane down to a smooth landing in a cotton field.

Flight Steward Frank Gibbs of Atlanta stood by the doorway, and as the wheels of the plane touched the ground—almost without a jar—he threw the door open, and as soon as the craft stopped rolling the passengers streamed to safety.

There was no time, however, to save the mail cargo.

Of those aboard, Pilot Hissong was the most painfully injured. He suffered burns about his neck and arms. The passengers received nothing worse than a few minor cuts and bruises. Mr. Connolly suffered a lacerated finger.

The passengers were high in their praise of the skill and daring of the crew in bringing the flaming plane to a landing without loss of life or serious injury.

"Pilot Hissong saved us," said George Stewart, Atlanta attorney and a passenger aboard the plane.

Passengers aboard the plane were listed as: R. B. Kahle, Dr. J. T. Nix, D. Drucker, Z. Lebenson and J. H. Sotham, all of New York, and all en route to Newark; J. H. Bonck of New Orleans, en route to Washington; J. V. Connolly of New York, F. T. Vonnegut of New Orleans, E. D. Rivers, jr., of Atlanta, W. O. Foote of Atlanta, and George Stewart of Atlanta, all en route to Atlanta.

TOWN GUARDED AS RIOTING MOB DRIVES OUT COLORED RESIDENTS

(By International News Service)

SMYRNA, Ga.—State police ruled the streets in this small town near Atlanta today following a race riot in which every colored resident was driven out of town.

An enraged mob of 300 invaded the colored section last night after Willie Russell, colored, had been arrested for the killing of George Camp, 66, and his 26-year-old daughter, Mrs. Christine Camp Apuls on Saturday.

Breaking into homes and smashing windows the mob emptied the section and then blocked off the highway into Atlanta to prevent the return of any.

Highway patrolmen hastily summoned by the outnumbered local officers broke up the human barricade with clubs and tear gas. The crowd quickly scattered and the state police advanced into town.

Streets were ordered cleared and all gatherings prohibited until the temper of the population cools.

As far as could be learned no one was injured in the brief clash with patrolmen and none was arrested.

Russell, the alleged killer, who was also charged with having seriously beaten Mrs. Apul's 10-year-old son, was taken to Atlanta and placed under heavy guard in the jail. Officers said they did not expect any attempt, however, to lynch the youth.

Officials said the extent of the damage in the colored section could not be determined last night because it is unlighted. An inspection was to be made today.

YARDS GUARDED

National Guard Called Out in Packing Plant Strike.

SIOUX CITY, Ia.—(INS)—The national guard was sought today to keep order in the stockyards district here where last night 1,000 strikers clashed with sheriff's deputies and police at the Swift and company packing plant.

The throng of union workers rushed the main gate of the plant in an avowed attempt to remove the 50 workmen escorted inside by guards early yesterday.

Special deputies and police repulsed the mob with tear gas shells and clubs after scores of windows in the building were broken and several cars overturned on the street outside.

Police Captain Leo J. Perleth was cut on the head by a brick and Patrolman Harry Gibbons was slightly injured when a squad car was overturned in the melee.

BOY RUN DOWN

Struck by Father's Car as He Plays in Driveway.

Knocked down as he tried to stop the family car as it backed down the driveway, Alan Meilinger, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Meilinger, 510 East Townview circle, was confined to General hospital today with scalp lacerations suffered in the fall.

According to his parents, the child was standing at the foot of the driveway when the car broke loose from its parking place. He ran to the car and tried to hold it back. He was knocked down and suffered several scalp lacerations.

His condition was reported as "good' by hospital attendants this morning. He was expected to be taken home this afternoon.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SON OF WEALTHY FAMILY SLAIN IN PARKED CAR

Pedestrian Sees Man Fleeing From Auto After Shooting Near Police Station.

(By Associated Press)

YOUNGSTOWN—Suburban Struthers authorities were confronted today with a slaying as baffling as it was brazen — the shooting of Henry Fitch, 31, as he brought his automobile to a stop in front of police headquarters.

Coroner David H. Hauser said Fitch was killed outright by a .38 caliber revolver bullet fired into his right side from a gun pressed against his coat. The bullet pierced his heart.

Clarence Ingram, a pedestrian, told police he saw Fitch draw to the curb. Ingram said he then heard a scream and saw a hatless man jump from Fitch's car, slam the door and run behind the police station in flight. The witness said he did not hear a shot.

Probe Two Theories.

Police Chief Harry Davis advanced two possible theories: That the killer was a hitch-hiker or robber whom Fitch surprised by driving to headquarters, or that he was an acquaintance with whom Fitch had quarreled.

Investigators said they doubted robbery was the motive since Fitch's wallet containing $6 and two valuable rings were found on the body.

Fitch, last surviving male member of a wealthy Mahoning valley family, drove to New Wilmington, Pa., near the state line, yesterday afternoon to consult a doctor. An unopened bottle of medicine was found in his pocket.

His 60-year-old mother, Mrs. C. C. Fitch, said her son frequently gave rides to hitch-hikers.

The victim, a bachelor, operated the C. C. Fitch Hardware company, a firm linked with the development of Struthers. The concern's store is located opposite police headquarters.

Mansfield 8th In State Last Year In Home Building

New residence construction last year boosted Mansfield to eighth place in Ohio in the number of persons provided with new homes, a survey completed by the Investors' Syndicate of Minneapolis showed today.

During 1937, the report showed new homes were provided for 576 people. This figure was 40 less than the total for 1936 but 188 more than in 1930, which the syndicate termed a "normal" building year.

In the value of new home construction, Mansfield ranked seventh in the state and held third place in per person costs.

The report said that residential building valuation figures totaling $846,425 for 1937 showed an increase of 2.69 per cent over the $842,250 recorded for 1936 and a 93.31 per cent increase over the 1930 total of $408,575.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Why Sue Disney for Song Theft? Most Composers Steal Their Tune Ideas

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—I am mildly startled to read that suits have been filed against Walt Disney on allegations that he plagiarized the works of two original composers in songs used in his production of "Snow White."

This was to me the first intimation that plagiarism, brain-picking or even outright, undisguised theft was held to be improper, much less illegal, in an art whose ethics and morals always seemed to have been frankly stolen from the pick-pocket and chicken thief.

Larceny long ago came to be regarded as respectable practice, for there have been recitalists in vaudeville and in the night clubs in our time who made a specialty of playing current popular songs and then playing them over again with slightly different tempo and accent to demonstrate that they had been stolen from more of less familiar pieces.

In the last dozen years or so at least five popular American songs, including one great national success, have been swiped from an old English hunting and drinking song called "Cram-Bam-Boolee," which the British fliers sometimes roared far into the night.

And it was a surprise to me one evening a few years ago, on tracing these American pieces unmistakably to the English hunting and drinking song, to be told by a friend in the composing business that the English song itself probably had been stolen from a German song, apparently even older, which he then showed me in a reference book and played over on the piano to prove the sameness.

This was by no means a rare case. He continued for more than an hour checking songs of current American popularity whose composers had had the gall to copyright them as original work, including one rank theft from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Tit-Willow," and even found songs stolen from songs which themselves plainly had been stolen.

It appears to be a very loose woman, this composing trade, and of such habits that a man producing a musical show or movie might be permitted a little surprise and hurt on being sued for infringement, even if it were true that he did infringe and knew it all the time.

I suggest, however, henceforth no original author need lose any sleep over the subject of his rights to his work, because, as music is played nowadays, not even the author himself would be likely to detect any resemblance to his property.

Mr. Benny Goodman's version of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" is one that will serve the purpose of illustration—a performance so tricked out in his own rare cleverness and fancy work that it seems a 90 per cent waste of his money to pay Mr. Irving Berlin his royalties on the grand old job that made the feet shuffle and the shoulders hunch in its tumbling rhythm when you and I were young.

This thing called swing as applied to a well-loved song is like a bath of some distracting French ketchup from molten tar and ipecac sloshed over a Kansas City T-bone, and it is my wan but earnest hope that some daring maestro will one day organize a band of musicians who can read music and play what is written to revive for the members of my generation in recognizable form the music of our 'teens and twenties.

Love songs, may I say, are excepted from this yearning, because mine is a generation that sang not of its love when young, but, unknowingly, perhaps, sang more of amour which is, in the American sense of the word, a very different and distinctly less dignified sentiment than that which our elders gave voice to in "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

The love songs of our time, appropriately, were mooed, not sung, for they were vealy songs of calf-love and are remembered without pride.

"I'll Be Waiting With a Taxi, Honey," and "Pick a Pinky Petal for Your Papa's Pride" were tawdry expressions of the sweet agony of youth, and there was to my taste something unmanly and deserving of a swift kick in the seat about anyone who mooned "All Alone by the Telephone" and blabbed his pining all over town.

I just doubt that that was love. I know not whether the Greeks had a word for it, but the American Indian, with his blunt economy of speech, would have expressed it honestly if indelicately in the phrase. "Ugh! Ketch'um squaw."

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Fay Bainter sits in the sun.

She's wearing knockabout clothes. Pink sweater, nondescript skirt. Her brown hair, graying, is mussed because she frequently pushes it back with a careless, practical hand. She isn't wearing rouge, or lipstick, or make-up of any kind. She isn't being glamorous like a movie star, in any fashion. She's being Fay Bainter at home, on a day off.

She sits in the sun, on the divan in the beach house living room, and the ocean is behind her, its booming muffled by the closed door. The light is the most unflattering possible, but she can stand it. She isn't beautiful. She isn't even pretty. I take that back. Fay Bainter is beautiful.

Not in looks. It's in a combination of things. Naturalness, first. Sincerity. Humor. Intelligence. Character. Oh, well — charm.

She has a 15-year-old boy, Reg. jr., just gone back to school in the east after a big California summer. (Reg. jr., couldn't get over some of the movie star neighbors, like Cary Grant, having swimming pools when the whole big ocean was so handy.)

* * *

The thing you can't help noticing about Miss Bainter, very soon, is that she's more Reg. jr.'s mother and Reg (sr.) Venable's wife than she is a movie star. Reg. sr., who's out in the sandy backyard talking things over with an old Annapolis classmate, was a navy commander, now resigned.

Pictures? Oh, yes, pictures, of course.

Well, "White Banners" turned the trick. She's ever so grateful to it, and right now she's grateful to have escaped from it. She was afraid she'd have to keep on playing martyred, noble women indefinitely. She had just done another, in "Arkansas Traveler," with Bob Burns, when "The Shining Hour" came along and plunged her healthily and happily into unpleasantness.

"The character is mean," she says. "It's a delight. She's almost indescribable. The nearest we can come to it is to say that she's a victim of fratro-neurasthenia. When her brother, Melvyn Douglas, comes to the farm with the New York cabaret girl, Joan Crawford, this woman does all she can to interfere. She's right, too, but she causes a lot of trouble. She reforms, in the end, but she's very interesting."

Once before Miss Bainter worked for Metro, five years ago. She came out for a picture after many stage success ("East Is West" was the one that ran five years) and she made "This Side of Heaven."

"I'd like to forget it," she says. "I don't blame anybody for it but myself—I didn't know the ropes."

Miss Bainter won't be typed. Not when she's as interested in "interesting" characters as she is.

She was disappointed when she didn't get a role in "The Toy Wife." Originally she was in it, you know—in the script of Zoe Adkins, who wrote a part with her in mind. If you try to guess which part, you'll never. It was the role of "Pick," the black faithful of Luise Rainer.

Fay Bainter wanted to play it, for all it was worth, in blackface. Studio wouldn't let her, but that's the only reason she didn't.

I say she won't be typed.

AFRAID TO MARRY + + +

By HELEN WELSHIMER

(Copyright, 1938)

CHAPTER 23

During the next two weeks she was unusually busy. Christmas was coming. There were wreathes to be bought, a tall evergreen to be ordered and its trimming to be supervised, presents to be selected. Two weeks after Christmas the contest winners in the fashion designs would be announced. This matter was of far greater interest to Judy than the gleam and glitter of the holiday season.

Downstairs everything was too gay, too bright — great silver wreathes with scarlet bows, and blue bows; holly and mistletoe supplied too lavishly; small, electrically lighted trees on every available table. Therefore she decorated her own room simply and used it as a haven during the evenings. She had a small tree, and she placed blue lights on its slim branches. She hung holly wreathes, crisp and fresh, at her latticed windows, and tied bright red bows on them.

Two weeks more, two weeks more, her heart kept singing. It made a refrain of the three words, and the train wheels chanted them; the wind blowing cold through the tall, barren trees outside her window sang them; the cheerful crackling of the log fire repeated them.

Two weeks more—and she could resign! The contest would be over. But suppose—suppose I don't win a prize, she murmured to herself now and then.

"But I will! If I think I will, I can't fail! You make life give you what you need, when it is good for you to have it!" she advised her faltering spirit at such times.

Abbey's wedding would take place toward the end of January. Already the guest lists were prepared. Invitations, which would be mailed three weeks before the day scheduled for the ceremony, were addressed, stamped, and waiting. The small book, in which gifts would be recorded to simplify the thank you notes for the donors, had been prepared.

The wedding cake and wedding supper had been ordered. The decorations had been chosen. The favors were prepared. There was nothing at all to do which would baffle a new secretary, Judy knew. Her conscience would not hurt her when she left.

Yet she would have consented to see the wedding through, she admitted, if it had not been for Ronald. He was growing disturbingly important. And Abbey found him too interesting, considering the fact that her wedding day, when she would marry another man, was so close at hand.

Judy was thinking of this when her telephone rang one afternoon.

"Yes?" she asked, hoping that it might be Ronald, and provoked that she did.

"Judy?" It was Ronald! "Can you locate Abbey for me? It's frightfully important that I get to her—immediately! And she isn't around."

* * *

JUDY SAT at the telephone table in her low, green and white room, pansy brown eyes hurt and bewildered, a slim hand holding the telephone as though the instrument must become animate and explain the call, if the caller wouldn't.

"I'll hunt for Miss Boland," she said at last. "Perhaps she is riding or skating. There are lots of people here, and it's gay."

It's so gay it makes my head ache, Ronald, she wanted to say. People keep saying brittle words that crack, and laughing brittle laughter that is hollow. I don't like it here. I want to go away.

"Listen very carefully, Judy," Ronald was saying, as though she were a child. "When you get Abbey, ask her to call me at once. Either here or at my apartment. It's terrifically important. I must see her, or at least talk to her."

"I'll find her," Judy promised.

I'll find her and give her your message, and all the time I'll wonder and wonder why you have grown fond of Abbey...I'll be an obedient secretary, Ronald, but one of these days very soon I'll be leaving here. Then it won't be necessary for me to carry your messages to another girl. We Rogers have our pride as you have it in your mountains. I don't want to care for you—but I do.

She felt better when she had admitted the fact. Before, it had been crowding against the doorway of her mind, striving to come out. Now she had unlatched the gate, and here it was. It wouldn't hurt so much.

Judy upbraided herself for fickleness. How could she have loved Craig, so short a time before, and now feel swift bells ringing when she saw a bright head flung back, and lips that quirked into a teasing smile? Wasn't she fickle, as those whom she had condemned because marriage was a transient part of their lives? Yet she knew that there was a difference in the two loves.

Craig had been a habit, and the habit had made the affection she bore him a routine. There had been love there, but fear had restrained it. If the love had been greater it would not have been so. Not once had she wanted to flee with Craig to some far corner of a sea, or a cliff on the side of the mountain. But she would have laughed at storms, warmed at hillside fires, if Ronald were there.

She knew it in a flash so blinding that it left her breathless, as though she had been walking on an upward road too long.

Once she had thought Ronald liked her. That was before she had seen him with Abbey.

Then Judy consoled herself with another line of reasoning. If Ronald had cared for her, wasn't this shifting of his affections added proof that love had its day and died? Maybe there was not such a thing as a clean, strong fire that burned consistently. Maybe there were just a lot of little fires, and pretty soon the human heart held piles of little ashes where love had been.

That had been her fear for the years at boarding school. It had checked her when she might have married Craig. Now it strengthened her when her heart was bruised by Ronald's attention to Abbey.

She found Abbey down in the swimming pool. The pool was a long one, and its waters were the green of it's tiled basin. People in gay swim suits were frolicking there. Abbey was stretched lazily under a sun lamp. When Judy repeated the message, she sat up quickly.

"Is that all he said?"

"Yes, that's all."

"Call him for me, right away, will you, Miss Rogers? I'll take the call in the booth down here."

So Judy got the law offices, heard Miss Martin's voice announce that she would summon Mr. Birrell, and a moment later heard his voice.

"Just a moment, Ronald," she explained calmly. "I have Miss Boland for you."

The conversation was a long one. Once Judy saw Abbey gesture with a white hand as though the man must catch the emphasis of her words. When she came out, she called to Judy:

"Mr Birrell is coming out on the next train. Will you ask the housekeeper to prepare the south guest room?"

A big party was scheduled at the estate for Christmas Eve. In some way this was connected with Ronald's insistence that he must talk to Abbey, Judy decided. A time or two that evening, when the guests were lounging carelessly around the long rooms where open wood fires burned cheerfully, Judy overhead a few words of conversation. She noted, too, that Abbey was careful to make everything casual — as though some business matter, not important but well to have out of the way, had brought him. With this party, the formal entertaining for the coming nuptials would be on.

Judy wondered if Ronald was trying to prevent Abbey from proceeding further with her wedding plans. She paused, quiet as a carved statue, at a new thought. The dowry had to be arranged. Of course! Ronald was objecting, for he knew when that step was taken the marriage was almost irrevocable, at least until such time as the two principals decided they had had enough of matrimony with each other.

A curious friendship had been developing between Count Phillippe and Judy. She recognized his handsomeness, his wit, his humor which laughed at everyone, himself most of all. She did not approve of him in any way, but she found him interesting and likable. Mrs. Bedford would have made him a more acceptable wife than Abbey would, Judy thought. The widow understood the rules by which he lived, and could match them. Abbey, for all her self-confidence and arrogance, could not meet them.

Thus, it happened that Judy and Count Phillippe talked gaily together, now and then. Judy was certain that he enjoyed her society more than that of the heiress, possibly because she did did not ask anything of him. He could relax with her, not watching for signs of withdrawal or anger.

That was the situation on the night that Ronald came so hastily from the city. The guests went to bed along about midnight. Judy stirred restlessly, trying to sleep Ronald was under the same roof. That was good. Snow drifted against the windows. A dog barked. It barked again. It growled. Then there was a vast white stillness. It was too still. Judy got up, wrapped a warm dark blue velvet negligee around her, slipped her feet into beaded moccasins, and stepped through a window to the balcony on which her room opened. This was better. The sky was unusually bright to be so heavy with snow clouds. The sound was rough. A lighthouse blinked its lantern like a wicked red eye in the distance.

Judy leaned against a post, not thinking, not wondering. Because she was so silent the man was creeping along the balcony did not know that she was there until he was almost upon her. He paused just as the brown eyes looked up.

"Hands up!" It was a throaty whisper.

Judy held them up. She wasn't as frightened as she imagined such a situation would cause her to be. The man was a prowler, doubtlessly, and would swing down the lattice in a moment.

The man advanced a step instead.

"You're the Boland dame?" he asked.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

TUITION SET

Rates for City Schools Show Increase Over Last Year.

Tuition rates of $11.17 per month for high school students and $10.89 for grade pupils, representing a slight increase over last year, had been set today for the Mansfield school district by the state department of education.

The high school rate is nine cents higher than last year and the elementary rate shows an increase of 87 cents per month over the 1937 figure.

There are 38 tuition pupils in the city public schools this fall, with all but one of them in special classes for handicapped children, Supt. W. L. Miller said. The other pupil attends an elementary school.

The schools, however, have 10 exchange pupils in the Madison township schools, receiving 10 pupils from the township school. There is no tuition charge in cases of exchange pupils.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19,1938.

When a burglar who was caught in a London home said he was a plumber his story was doubted as he had his tools along.

"American and British economists are beginning to realize that the German system of barter is the only practical one," says Dr. Funk, Nazi minister of economics. Yes, we've noticed how Germany traded a war scare for Czechoslovakia.

They Won't Stay Down.

EMPIRE Sheet and Tin Plate company's Delano lodge scores success No. 2 in less than a year in its own novel and effective plan for helping idle steel workers to help themselves.

The word novel is used advisedly, for Delano lodge's plan to provide food for workers whose employment was uncertain is certainly that. Unneeded at the plant, they turned to the tilling of the soil, and as a result the larders of those men who didn't sit down and moan because they had no work in the mill will be plentifully stocked with staple foods this winter. A case of "as ye sow, so shall ye reap" that is definitely proved.

Refreshing, too, is the fact that these men—with their organization behind them—found they still had resources at their command, though their usual means of livelihood proved insufficient. They could take care of themselves. If they had no work in the mill, they could plough, plant, weed and—finally—harvest.

Last winter, these same unemployed men cut wood for fuel, and had plenty of it. Now that their second successful project, that of community gardening is finished, they turn to wood-cutting again.

It takes more than depressions to lick men like that.

Parking Meters, Parking Headaches.

WHAT can be done about parking? Mansfielders have asked themselves that question so many times they get a headache every time they bring the family buggy into the downtown business district.

Frequently in recent years the establishment of public parking lots has been advocated. The proponents get so convincing at times that you think it's just a matter of minutes before it's solved. Then you look around for available sites in the business area and you are back where you started.

Now parking meters have been proposed again, and there is a possibility that city council may give this twentieth century innovation a whirl, although it looks like it would be a formidable task to "sell" some drivers on the idea that they would have to put a nickel in a slot to park on a given spot for a given time.

Whether nickel-in-the-slot meters will remedy the situation better than strict enforcement of the traffic regulations as they now stand is a debatable matter. Both plans call for more policemen. Under the meter system, of course, someone has got to keep an eye on the devices to see that the driver's "rent" is paid. Proponents favor the hiring of three more policemen. More police will also be necessary if existing regulations are to be adequately enforced.

In the final analysis, agreeing that a solution must be found to a most unsatisfactory parking situation, it becomes a question of how it shall be paid for.

It may be either a nickel at a time, under the meter plan, or through increased police personnel, for which of course Mr. Taxpayer eventually pays, to enforce present regulations.

With the plan apparently certain to go before council for decision, both proposals for solution are headed for a thorough airing.

Red Republican Faces.

IF YOU NOTICE any of the Republican campaign leaders in Richland county with red faces these days—perhaps you can figure out the reason for it.

They got that way trying to keep everybody happy—trying to persuade Townsend pension plan followers that they were for them and to persuade Republicans who aren't Townsend sympathizers that after all, it's still the Republican party, the same party they used to know.

The exertion involved in that highly difficult exercise is certainly enough to cause red faces—perhaps a drop of anxious perspiration here and there.

The lot of the county Republican leader, forsooth is not a happy one.

There is on the Republican ticket this fall Walter B. Woodward, Bellville, running for 17th district congressman. He got on the ticket as a Townsender. That was a surprise to the Republicans.

But now that he's on they're trying to be nice to him. He's one of their loudest campaign speakers, and from his Townsend plan supporters, at least, he gets loud applause.

The Republican leaders think that means votes and there never was a party leader yet who'd throw away votes.

On the other hand, Republicans as such haven't been noted for their embracing of the Townsend plan. They haven't rejected yet in its entirety their belief in rugged individualism, and to many of them the idea of taking the Townsend plan under their wing is a distasteful one.

So the worried Republican leaders are afraid that some of the long-time conservative Republicans would rather string along with Woodward's well-known and well-liked Democratic opponent, William A. Ashbrook, veteran representative of the 17th district.

And they're afraid that Republicans who vote for Ashbrook might also vote for some other Democrats, come Nov. 8, and that, they think, would be bad—very bad.

It's all very confusing. Not only to the Republican leaders, but to lots of the voters.

Wonder what Robert A. Taft, son of a Republican president, and epitome of all that is true Republicanism, will think here tonight as he sits on the campaign platform and listens to a ticket-mate, Walter B. Woodward, Townsender, assert, AS A REPUBLICAN, that a $200 a month pension is the greatest plank in his platform, on which all others are based, and that passage of the Townsend plan as national legislation will be his unswerving goal?

Keeping Step

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—So many loopholes appear in the Johnson act that fiscal sharpshooters here predict that foreigners, if pressed for credit, could borrow immense sums here in spite of the act's restrictions on loans to debt-defaulting nations.

In war time, of course, a different situation would prevail, as the Neutrality Act, when invoked, would prohibit loans of any kind to foreign nations or their nationals.

But the Johnson act was a peacetime loan embargo measure. It was passed by congress in 1934 in the wake of a flood of defaults in payments on war debts and other debts. It prohibits foreign governments from borrowing money in this country as long as they are in default in their payments. Since every important European nation is in that predicament, it generally has been assumed that they could not borrow a red cent in the U. S.

* * *

War Crisis Brought Scrutiny.

The Czech war scare, coupled with talk of loans to help revive Czechoslovakia and perhaps other nations, has prompted a closer look.

The Johnson act, while prohibiting loans to debt-defaulting governments, does not prohibit loans to private concerns in those countries. Further, the attorney general has ruled that municipalities in the debtor countries can borrow here if their municipal bonds are not in default. For instance, the city of London, if not in default on its securities, can borrow here.

As a matter of fact, twelve billion dollars or more of American money now is invested abroad, exclusive of war debts. Americans invested more than $5,000,000,000 abroad during 1936 and 1937 although the net flow of capital was in this direction because of the rush of foreign investment in America.

May Run Into Billions.

With such openings through our credit barriers, the amount of buying which Europe could finance in this country is considerable. One important source said it might run to several times as much as the amount of foreign money now invested in this country. These foreign investments here amount to about nine billion dollars.

Actual dollar credits in American banks and other "quick" credits owned by foreigners can be used at once if foreigners wish to buy American supplies. "Long term" credits, forming two-thirds of the total, would be converted into goods more slowly.

So far, this involves merely spending money already here, either scared here from abroad, or sent here for investment. But look what can happen.

A big order for goods is to be placed by an English firm for steel, clothes, tires, or airplanes. The American firm is told only part will be paid in cash, the rest in one, two or three year notes. The American manufacturer wants the job. Unless he is able to arrange the credit the English purchaser demands, he loses the contract. So, he asks his bank if it will buy the notes or lend him money on them so his capital will not be tied up. If the foreign company offering the buying is a substantial firm, such as the big British armament firm of Vickers, the bank may readily buy the notes and expect to rediscount them (get cash for them) at the Federal Reserve banks.

And thus a big line of borrowing could be launched.

Profits Change Views.

The extent to which such practices now are followed is unknown here. Probably it isn't large. If it grew to real proportions likely enough the courts would be asked to rule whether such business was in violation of the spirit of the Johnson act. But if the business was proving profitable at the time, it is doubtful how long a court decision would stand in the way. Tremendous presure would be put upon congress to wipe out the barrier entirely.

In fact, the pressure is already being felt, not only to revise the Johnson act but to repeal it entirely so that, the argument goes, American credits can help along an international trade revival.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

IN YOUR OWN SELF

In your own self lies treasure rare,
Then do not live your life
Absorbed but in the day-by-day,
World's vanity and strife.

Live often with your mind's best dreams,
And even if they fail,
Remember this, the path to heights
Is ever Holy Grail.

It is not always victory,
Though that is always dear,
That lifts us up, that stirs the heart,
That brings the high hope near.

For often from defeats we go
To higher goals than we
Had planned at first, our failures speed
Us on eternally.

Pointed Paragraphs

If one will not, the other cannot quarrel.

After leaving college it would be a good idea for some men to go to school.

Wise men change their minds occasionally, but fools have none to change.

COOTIES!

The Human Side of the News

—By EDWIN C HILL

LIBERTARIANS of England have made much of the line in Chesterton's poem, "We are the people of England, and we have not spoken yet." Will they have any opportunity to speak? Or will they find themselves caught up in the new shirted multitudes in which one speaks safely only to himself?

There has been much loose talk of Britain and France going fascist. I don't think anybody, especially at this distance, knows enough to write a ticket about what's going to happen over there. Personally, and for quite definite reasons, I am laying a discreet bet that both France and England will continue as old-established firms, and will continue dealing their old-line brand of democracy long after the tumult of the loud-speaker dies and the captains and the kings have blown themselves through a tin horn.

There is still a powerful hangover of Watt Tyler and Nottingham Hill in old England, and a similar carry-over of the old up-and-at-'em spirit of free men in France.

I once went away wrong on England. It's a nation of "me too" men, I thought, noting the obsequiousness of the British menial, bowing and scraping and jerkins off his cap on the slightest provocation. They seemed ripe for an iron man. Then, at the hotel, there was a row. A gaudy Balkan millionaire had been shoving a porter around. Those abject, flat-chested little porters suddenly became a cageful of wildcats. They marched into the boss and told him that if he didn't toss out this bleedin' this-and-that, they would. The boss hastily gave the trouble-maker the gate.

I understood the British better after that. This sometimes exaggerated deference of the underling and the haughtiness of the upper classes is all of a piece with their merely symbolic king. They treat the king as if he really had power and they defer to their "betters" as if they really considered them superior beings. These are amenities and genuflections to an old and stable ordering of life, but the underlying realities are essentially the deep-down roots of democracy. And, in my opinion, there is enduring vitality in British democracy.

But they may have to watch their step. I confess I was jolted by those stories from London about the new press censorship. J. H. Brebner is made controller of press and publications for the post office department, according to news reports. All departments of the government have "public relations" officers who, in time of stress would be under control of the ministry of information.

There is also a story that a prominent advertising man had been hired by the Conservative party to put on a high-pressure publicity campaign in behalf of Neville Chamberlain's foreign policy. There is a rush to install telephones and teleprinters, connected with newspapers and press association, in the offices of the board of education.

Perhaps somebody will "say it ain't so." There is, of course, a possible reservation in that these may be urgent war preparations. But the state control or suppression of a free press is disquietly symptomatic of the start of absolutism, in one of its supposedly new but essentially ancient forms. The dictators pay a great tribute to free newspapers as the lifeblood of democracy. Their first onslaught is invariably on the free press. Obviously they couldn't get to first base, with a free-courageous and enlightened press telling the truth about them. If fascism looms in England, they can throw a switch on it right now by keeping their newspapers free.

I have heard much talk recently about England and France "lying down" before Hitler's advance down the Danube. Talk is considerably cheaper over here than it is over there — with bombing planes only an hour or two away, wherever you might stick a pin on the map. I have an idea that, under similar circumstances, we, too, would go to desperate extremes to keep out of war. At best, our indignation over democracy's defeat at the hands of the dictators is a delayed reaction.

In 1932, when Henry L. Stimson, Hoover's secretary of state, tried to stop Japan's move to the Asiatic mainland, and warned the world of the breakdown of international law, he was a voice crying in the wilderness. But we know now that was the time for the democratic powers to get their back up. There are many who think it is now too late. I don't think so. I agree with Thomas Mann about the "Coming Victory of Democracy."

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Oct. 19, 1918.

Mansfield movie followers read of the death of the greatest movie star of the day, Harold Lockwood, from influenza in New York.

Rev. R. E. Tulloss, pastor of First Lutheran church, moved his household goods from Cambridge, Mass., to 28 Bartley avenue.

Mrs. Thurlow Wilhelm and Mrs. Anna Saska were among the ten to die from influenza-pneumonia for the day.

Miss Sara L. Tracy was appointed an occupational aide by the war department and assigned to Letterman's hospital, San Francisco.

Contractors began work of laying foundation for the walls of the new Westinghouse building, East Fifth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ackerman received first letter in two years from daughter, Mrs. Ella Wenzell, who was unable to get out of Berlin when war broke.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Oct. 19, 1933.

Louis Bromfield, novelist, just home from abroad, asserted Europe was "too fast and noisy" and announced he would select permanent home near Baltimore, Md.

Mansfield high's school's Tygers, unbeaten in 37 straight games, sent bids for post-season games to Canton McKinley, Steubenville, Toledo Waite, Springfield and Dover.

Henry R. Fiedler addressed Y. M. C. A. Stamp club on "The Story Behind Every Stamp."

Mrs. Melissa Booth, 76, daughter of early Richland county settlers, died at family home 18 Parkway avenue.

High school senior girls shattered tradition by voting to pay their own way to "prom" of mid-year graduation class.

TODAY IN HISTORY

October 19—Cornwallis, general of the British armies during the Revolutionary war, surrendered at Yorktown on Oct. 19, 1781.

Timely Editorial

STILL THE WPA ROLLS GROW

The department of commerce reports improved business conditions in general. The department of labor reports more jobs in industry. The WPA reports that "many thousands" of its workers are leaving for other employment. But in spite of all this, the WPA continues to enlarge rather than cut down its own pay rolls. This also happened in the summer and fall of 1936, when all the administration campaigners asserted business was much better. Could anything connected with Nov. 8 explain the growth of work relief pay rolls now?—Kansas City tSar.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"No Man's Land."

The expression "No Man's Land" did not, as is commonly supposed, originate with the World war; it had before been applied to territory whose ownership was questionable.

Off the coast of Massachusetts is an almost completely uninhabited island long previously so-called.

In South Australia there is an area of eight thousand square miles whose indefinite ownership long ago earned for it this appelation.

The most interesting "No Man's Land" was within our very midst. It was a strip of land on the boundary between Pennsylvania and Delaware. Officially, it was declared to belong to Pennsylvania; but some of the inhabitants claimed that it was not part of either state and they neither voted nor paid taxes.

Before it was made a full-fledged state, Oklahoma used to be known as "No Man's Land." Because of legal technicalities, it was said to be beyond the jurisdiction of the United States courts becoming a haven for criminals and outlaws of all sorts. When it finally entered the Union, the big stick of Uncle Sam quickly rid it of its undesirable tenants.

Daily Bible Thought

Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin. And the servant abideth not in the house for ever: but the Son abideth ever. If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.—John 8:34-36.

When Does Obedience Cease to Be a Virtue?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I have long suspected that Obedience is a greatly overrated Virtue . . . responsible for as much mischief and misery as many an openly banned Vice.

Yes, I know—you'll probably register violent protest. And proceed to tell me that a character isn't worth shucks, mentally or morally, until it has been disciplined by unquestioning submission . . . 'n' how no man can rule wisely who has not learned, first, to obey.

With which precepts I promptly agree. They're 100 per cent correct . . . a fact which I've not only seen proved by experience but which was pounded into me, as it may have been into you, in those grim days when "DO AS YOU'RE TOLD AND NO LIP FROM YOU, YOUNG SQUIRT!" was the accepted credo for the young. The very notion that a child should learn to make his own decisions—and that he'd remain just a bundle of Wet Wash unless and until he did—would have given Gramp and Gram the Screaming Meamies. A 19th Century child not only restrained his ideas but, if properly trained, didn't have any to restrain. His elders did the thinking for him. And that was that!

As proof of which, consider that bit of classical tripe which all Fifth Graders once learned to recite . . . and perhaps still are! I refer to "Casabianca."

"But, surely," a horrified voice protests, "you are not going to deride the heart-rending story of that brave, obedient little boy who 'stood upon the burning deck whence all but him had fled!' Why, just think of that poor darling standing there with that awful fire coming nearer and nearer . . . standing listening to the crashing timbers and the shrieks of his comrades, as they sprang into the sea . . . refusing to follow them even as the smoke rolled over him and the flames leaped upon him and he sank to death—all because his dear, dead daddy had told him not to move. Think of a little, ten-year-old boy doing that! Wasn't it wonderful . . . wasn't it brave . . . wasn't it the most beautiful example of devotion?"

No, it wasn't! It was ghastly and cruel and criminally stupid that any ten-year-old child should have been so trained that he dared not think for himself, even in the face of death! And the people who supported such a system should have been branded for their inhumanity.

* * *

Such training does not develop the human mind or spirit, nor set it free to go on great adventures. It dwarfs and degrades it . . . robs it of initiative and ambition . . . turns it into a coward or a senseless robot. Consider another hideous example which the rising generation is still exhorted to honor—"The Charge of the Light Brigade."

"Cannon to right of them,
"Volleyed and thundered—"

Yet on they rode, that gallant Six Hundred . . . knowing they went to certain doom . . . knowing the order which sent them was their Commander's stupid, stubborn blunder. But—

"Theirs not to reason why,
"Theirs but to do and die.
"Noble Six Hundred!"

But were they "noble"? Or were they the pitiful victims of a vicious and ignorant system?

The most precious prerogative of human life is the divine gift of FREE WILL . . . the right to think, to choose, to shape one's own course toward the highest end and the greatest good. But that gift cannot be used—will not even develop — if the growing spirit is laced within the stunting straight-jacket of IMPLICIT OBEDIENCE.

The child who is not taught to make its own decisions, within reasonable limits . . . who is not allowed—and, indeed, forced—to follow through those decisions, even though they lead to painful consequences . . . is cruelly crippled for life. How often you've seen such cripples! Grown men whose mothers are still making up their minds for them! Grown women, unmarried, leading bitter, sterile lives because their wills were broken as children! Adults, of either sex, who use Obedience as a hide-away from the challenge of Reality . . . as an escape from Individual Responsibility.

When does Obedience cease to be a Virtue and become a Vice?

When it blocks life . . . when it makes you a puppet instead of a person.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Just as she was sailing for South America on a concert tour, a well-known diva was pleasantly stunned to find in her cabin a spray of orchids to which was attached a costly jewelled bracelet, the gift of an ardent wooer, himself a Latin. This thoughtful little gesture tipped the scales in his favor and on her return she determined to marry him.

In Buenos Aires, however, she met a man who bore a startling resemblance to the swain who had presented her with the jeweled token of his infatuation. A chance conversation revealed that he was the brother of her Manhattan Don Juan, and in fluent phrases the South American began to denounce his brother for failing to contribute anything to the support of his impoverished mother and father.

Whereupon the diva, filled with compassion, pressed the jeweled bracelet upon the indignant brother and persuaded him to accept $500 in American money. What she advised her suitor to do when he met her at the pier on her return from the Pampas country is something that can not be repeated in polite company.

THOSE two embryo artists who feel they need the inspiration of a downtown garret or an East river studio before they can write are deluding themselves . . . Very few of the best selling authors turn out much work in New York . . . Most of them prefer the tranquil calm of a country village, which explains why in summer the woods are filled with serious-faced men armed with portable typewriters.

Frequently the same is true with illustrators . . . Joseph Cummings Chase has several studios, but most of his best work has been done amid throngs of people or on the fly. He spent months during the war ducking into mud-filled trenches painting high officers for the government, and on his return managed to complete a fast assignment on President Wilson. He achieved this by purchasing all the seats at a world series game surrounding the one in which the president sat. All through the contest he sketched the president, then returned home with his various poses and completed the portrait. The fine skylight of a well-appointed studio is necessary at times, but competent artists are able to work under any circumstances.

THOMAS E. DEWEY is a colorful figure and is running for governor of the State of New York, but he is not the most spectacular prosecutor or lawyer New York has had. The records are filled with bar figures who were consummate actors as well as skilled artists in legal procedure.

Max D. Steuer is low spoken, persuasive, and confidential . . . Ferdinand Pecora, before he became a judge, was a dynamo and a persistent one . . . William Fallon, now dead, "was Richelieu himself in court" . . . George Gordon Battle is courteous but relentless . . . Hyman Bushel, whose daughter is a New York newspaperwoman, is Rudy Vallee's favorite counsel . . . Bernard Sandler and Nathan Burkan are colorful figures whose clients are mostly Hollywood and Broadway celebrities.

Beware of desperate steps.—The darkest day, live till tomorrow, will have passed away.—Cowper.

There are but two powers in the world, the sword and the mind. In the long run the sword is always beaten by the mind.—Napoleon I.

A Farmer's Diary

A Legacy.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AN old couple, both past 80, showed me the book with pride. The husband brought it and leafed it through with adept fingers. His wife, from her wheel chair, spoke of the tiny specks of brown that stained the leaves.

"The sea did that," she said. "My grandfather came to this country on a sailing ship in 1830. He brought that Bible with him. It had quite a history. It seems books were expensive then, especially this version of the Bible. But an English publisher conceived the idea of printing it a little at a time, so that more people might subscribe, and have it. Grandfather did that, and kept the pages, until he had them all, then got it bound."

I held the Old Book in my hands, and looked at the scarred binding, the leaves, brown with age and stains of brine. In fancy I could see that pioneer, facing westward upon a rolling pitching deck, the light of hope in his eyes, his Bible under his arm. The wind bellowed the sails, and strained at the taut ropes. The sailors ran hither and yon at sharp commands. Weeks on the waves . . . weeks of wonder and faith and prayer . . . then ashore in a wild, unknown country . . . a prairie wagon or an oxcart. A section of forest land, a cabin, a log church, a settlement. And always this salt-stained old Book. Without it he would not have dared to come. With it he came and conquered the wilderness.

I looked at his granddaughter, a sweet, white-haired old lady in a wheelchair, whose presence is a tonic—and at her husband, agile and active yet, in spite of the years. Like a whiff of salt sea air, I felt the faith of that pioneer sweep across the years, and touch my own life.

Reverently I closed the Book and thanked my friends for a glimpse of something infinitely precious.
